CRUEL GUARD FEEDS TEENS TO FIRE ANTS

. . . say cops

By MICHAEL FORSYTH
Weekly World News

FLORIDA CITY, Fla. — A pair of teens who tried to escape from a juvenile detention center say they were sadistically punished by a guard — who forced them to lie on a nest of fierce, flesh-biting red ants!

The boys, ages 14 and 15, made the accusation after they were hauled into court to face escape charges.

"One of the boys lifted his shirt in the courtroom and showed what appeared to be hundreds of ant bites," said Assistant Public Defender Marie Osborne, who reported the shocking incident to authorities.

Red ants are among the most aggressive insects in the U.S. and even a single bite is excruciatingly painful.

The Cool Hand Luke-type prison nightmare allegedly occurred last summer after the boys, who have not been identified, escaped from the Hurricane Conservation Corps program, where they'd served about six months of their roughly year-long sentences.

"A staff member saw them on the road, recognized them and did a U-turn to catch them," said Osborne.

The guard, Andrew McCray, allegedly spotted an anthill bustling with activity and chose the spot to teach the juvenile delinquents a lesson in obedience they'd never forget.

"The boys say he deliberately forced them to lie on the mound, one on top of the other, and used his foot to keep them from getting up," said Osborne.

McCray claims he meant no harm. He says he was simply trying to restrain the youngsters until help arrived and there just happened to be an anthill where he made the boys lie and were caught by guard Andrew McCray.

The boys allege that McCray forced them to lie on the ground, one on top of the other, on a mound of fire-biting ants, and [illegible] top of them.

McCray said he "considered the boys fighting duties and that he was trying to restrain them until help arrived."

unit of the Metro Dade Police Department for investigation, and the civil rights division of the U.S. Attorney's Office is also looking into it.

"If what the boys' say is true, this guard's behavior was pretty callous," Osborne said.

USE FANTASY TO IMPROVE YOUR LIFE!

By JUNE SAWYER / Weekly World News

Fantasies can improve your life: They can unlock your creativity, enhance your pleasure, cheer you up when you're down and help you make decisions, says a top psychologist.

Here are some of the ways fantasies can make your life better, according to Dr. Gary Emery:

● They are the key to creativity. Novelists fantasize their characters and plots before they write their books. "Artists have fantasies of their finished work even before they start on the canvas," Dr. Emery said.

In everyday situations, a mother can use her fantasies to plan decorations for her child's party — seeing in her mind's eye exactly how the party room will look before she even buys the decorations.

● Fantasies can boost our spirits when we're down. For example, when things go badly at work, you can cheer yourself up by fantasizing about a positive situation at home. By picturing your little daughter happily playing, you can ease your depressed feelings.

● Fantasies can intensify pleasure. Suppose you're playing softball with your children and you make a great catch. You can double your pleasure by imagining that you made that catch during a World Series game.

WEEKLY WORLD NEWS
SPECIAL EDITION!

● They can help you make decisions. You can picture what will happen if you decide one way, then visualize the outcome if you make another decision. For example, a woman buying a shirt for her husband can visualize what he'll look like in each of several shirts, and this will help her arrive at her decision.

Dr. Emery, author of the book Getting Un-Depressed, added, "Your fantasies about a situation can help prepare you to deal with problems in a constructive way.

"So don't be afraid to use your fantasies. Unless they keep you from dealing with reality, your fantasies can make your life much better."

HELL-HOT JUNE, & AUGUST BE A OF THE END TIMES?

METEOROLOGIST Theodore Alackensby

God will use weird weather to warn us of the coming storm in the year 2000, Bible experts say

By MIKE FOSTER/Weekly World News

WASHINGTON — The summer of 1999 will be the hottest in recorded history, weather experts predict — with much of the Earth becoming a hellish inferno, massive droughts wiping out crops and freakish wildfires reducing hundreds of cities to cinders!

Temperatures in parts of North America and Europe are expected to hit a furnace-like 130 degrees — hot enough to melt the rubber off car tires.

"It's hard for the layman to understand the kind of killing heat we're talking about," said Los Angeles meteorologist Theodore Alackensby. "It means that if you leave a toddler on the sidewalk for an hour, he or she will be roasted like a piglet turning on a spit."

Despite the alarming forecast, some religious leaders are actually heartened by the news, which they consider a possible sign from God.

"The Bible states that in the period just before the return of Jesus Christ, the Earth will be visited by unusual weather and natural disasters," notes the Reverend Jim Fardlane of Lexington, Ky.

"If indeed we experience a fiery summer, it will be further proof that the end is near.

"It adds credence to the belief that the year 2000 will be the year of the Apocalypse, the long-awaited period of worldwide chaos described in the Bible's Book of Revelation.

"God is using this strange weather to warn us of the coming tribulation. We must now all devote ourselves to earnest prayer and preparation — because the climax of the End Times will be the triumphant arrival of our Lord to judge mankind."

The frightening forecast was made by National Weather Service experts in President Bill Clinton that has not yet been released to the general public.

But a government insider made an advance copy of the report available to meteorologist Alackensky, who calls it "truly frightening."

Here, is some of what the weather experts predict.

VIOLENT TORNADOS — In early June, whirlwinds of unprecedented strength are expected to sweep through Western Europe, destroying centuries-old castles and dismantling homes, causing countless billions in property damage. America's Pacific Northwest will also be badly hit, with thousands of giant redwoods toppled.

KILLING HEAT — By mid-July, temperatures in Asia, North America and Europe will average 110 degrees — and peak at a blistering 130 degrees in some areas — causing an estimated 30 million deaths worldwide from dehydration and other heat-related medical conditions. Desperate refugees will flee to coastal areas or higher, cooler, altitudes to escape the sizzling heat, overburdening these regions of the world.

"Martial law should probably be instituted to preserve order," the report suggests. Weapons may be seized to prevent angry locals from becoming vigilantes and driving off outsiders, or destroying the makeshift tent cities set up by authorities to house refugees.

DEADLY DROUGHTS — Severe mega-droughts in the world's temperate zones will turn croplands into dust bowls, with Germany, France, Russia, and Kansas and Iowa in the U.S. hardest hit, the forecasters predict.

"Not a drop of rain is expected in these areas in June or July," said Alackensky. "What were once the breadbaskets of the world will be transformed into barren wastelands."

Crops will dry up, bankrupting many farmers, while strict water rationing will be instituted. "Non-essential uses, such as baths, should be forbidden," the report to Clinton advises.

GOD'S WRATH WILL HERALD THE SECOND COMING!

WIDESPREAD FIRES — Unusually heavy lightning activity, combined with underbrush dried out by the heat, will spark innumerable fires worldwide, the report warns.

Drought conditions made worse by the still-lingering La Nina weather pattern will make fighting the rampaging wildfires impossible. "[illegible] will simply have to let many towns and homes burn."

ELECTRICAL STORMS — Vicious daily lightning storms will knock out power grids across the Northeastern U.S., Great Britain and Scandanavia, plunging cities into darkness all summer long. London will be especially hard hit, with residents forced to contend with hundreds of people who are unlucky enough to be traveling in crowded subways when the big blackouts occur could the horrible, excruciating deaths from suffocation," warned Alackensky.

FREAK TORRENTIAL STORMS — Powerful storms will pound India, Southeastern Asia and the American South, creating vast swamps and burying large land areas under waters mixed with large pools of stagnant water are expected to result in massive plagues of mosquitos, causing discomfort as well as serious health risks to residents.

"You won't be able to breathe through your mouth or nose without sucking in some of the bugs," said the expert.

"Also, the insects will spread infections from one person's blood to another.

Modesty? This man doesn't know the meaning of the word!

'I'm

"I'M A LADY-MAGNET," says Lawrence, showing off one of his recent female acquisitions.

By BEATRICE DEXTER
Weekly World News

MIAMI, Fla. — Luscious Lawrence Fawder is the most charming, best looking, most terrific guy in the world and if you don't believe that, ladies — just ask him!

The magnificent man's only fault is that he lacks a certain humility, but he doesn't consider that a fault.

"Humility is overrated in a man like me," the suntanned superlover told Weekly World News. "Being as wonderful as I am, I have a duty to let women know I exist. I have to inspire them, to feed their fantasies.

"I'd be doing a great disservice to the ladies if I hid my light under a bushel."

Fawder, who prefers to be called Lorenzo "because it suits my Latin lover image," is a 30-year-old advertising salesman in real life. But since he was officially declared "Mr. Wonderful" in a recent contest at his singles club, he has begun to dream of parlaying his perfection into a glorious career of some sort.

"Maybe I should be a model," he said in a recent interview for his club's newsletter.

"I'm a natural talent. Or maybe I should cut a record. I'm not as good at singing as I am at attracting women, but then it hardly matters — because I have a beautiful voice and know I could make a hit.

"On the other hand, my life is becoming pretty complicated now that word is out about me. Women see me with my beautiful good looks and charm and it gets dangerous. I have to hire bodyguards sometimes when I go out.

"They mob me, they line up for autographs, they throw themselves at me."

Man floated marriage proposal in a bottle — gal gets it 74 years later!

VALDEMARSVIK, Sweden — A 94-year-old widow found a wedding proposal in a bottle — sent by her college sweetheart 74 years ago!

The elderly woman found the bottle in the Baltic Sea on November 6, 1998. The wedding proposal inside of it was written by her college beau after the two split in January of 1925. The heartbroken lass wed someone else three months later.

Sources say that bottled proposal prompted the great-grandmother to begin an intensive search for her long lost love on the Internet, but so far she has been unable to find him.

Creep picks gal's pocket after she saves his life!

HAMBURG, Germany — Good Samaritan waitress Katerina Schinke, 34, rushed to the aid of a man who was choking on a chicken bone and applied the Heimlich maneuver, saving the man's life. Then, after the diner had left the restaurant, astonished Katerina discovered that the bastard, Bernd Meiers, 42, had admitted stealing nearly $45 from a pocket in the waitress' apron just moments after she'd forced the deadly bone from his throat.

time to fit all his women in. "I need eight days in a week," he sighed.

"It gets to be hard work. There are just so many gals who want to be with me. I feel it's only fair to distribute the wealth."

Balding, jewelry-bedecked and bare-chested, 4-foot Fawder primps and preens until he is an irresistible dazzling dude. He says it takes him two hours to put the finishing touches on his appearance each morning.

"You have to work at being wonderful," he explained modestly. "I get up early and go straight to the mirror to check my hair and look for wrinkles. I put on moisturizer, do 50 push-ups, then have a bath and spend half an hour under my sunlamp.

SO MANY women, so little time, sighs luscious Lawrence

"I spend about 20 minutes choosing my outfit for the day, splash on the Brut, then dash out.

"The whole process takes about two hours and there's no time for breakfast."

But luscious Lorenzo doesn't believe that purred. "I'd compare myself most closely to Casanova, but actually I'm better than he was. I have no equal at making a woman happy.

"Other women have told me they don't want to let go. It's a problem, actually.

"I have to use disguises when I go out of my house just to keep them off my back — fake beards, wigs, that sort of thing."

Mr. Wonderful recommends that every man try to equal his incredible success with the opposite sex.

"I'VE NEVER MET A GIRL who didn't love me at first sight," says Lawrence.

"Of course being irresistible comes naturally to me — not everybody's got what I've got," cautioned Fawder, who lives alone in a cozy little love nest not very far from his mouth-

Faye Dunaway

A Fabulous Faye hoped to be the center of attention when she recently attended the famed Vienna opera ball dressed to the nines and in the company of a millionaire tycoon. But the legendary screen star was upstaged by a little-known porno actress! Paparazzi stopped snapping Faye's picture and rushed to snap shots of bodacious blue-movie queen Dolly Buster — after the German starlet's dress came off on the dance floor, baring her assets. Dolly swears she didn't rip off the gown intentionally.

WARNING: DON'T PLAY ROUGH WITH YOUR BABY — YOU COULD CAUSE BRAIN DAMAGE!

By KELLY TURNER
Weekly World News

If a fond uncle picks up your small child and starts to toss him playfully into the air — stop him at once! Your child's brain can be damaged by it, warns a specialist.

"Any tossing or shaking that causes a whiplash, jerking motion to a child's head is dangerous," said noted pediatrician Dr. John Claffey.

"Too many parents, relatives and others who come into contact with small children don't know how easily a young child's brain can be injured," he said. "That's because the child's neck muscles aren't strong enough to prevent his head from jerking violently, causing the brain to be battered against the inside of the skull."

The resulting injuries, which may not be unexpected at the time, can lead to the tragedy of mental retardation, blindness or learning difficulties later in life, said Dr. Claffey, who has made a lifelong study of brain damage in young children.

The infant's toy of course, must be unbreakable, but even up to the age of 3 or 4, severe tossing or shaking can cause a child lasting damage," he warned.

"When you stop people from tossing your baby in the air, they may think [illegible] ... but believe me, I know what I'm talking about," the specialist said.

"I've examined brain-damaged children, seen the effect of whiplash injury, and I know I would do all I could to let parents and people outside them don't know about."

Dr. Claffey is also concerned about children's [illegible] playthings that jog them about.

"Toys sticks, baby bouncers, powered rocking horses and swings can be dangerous in certain circumstances."

Very small children should not be taken on amusement park rides that whip their heads about, nor allowed on trampolines, skate boards or snowmobiles, he said.

"I would never let a child under 10 ride on a snowmobile, nor would I take an infant in a boat on a trip over rough water."

Small aircraft also present a hazard to the young child because of the possibility of rough weather.

"And don't let a young child dive again and again into a swimming pool — even though the child may seem to be enjoying it."

"There's an impact every time the young head hits the water and the potential for brain damage is there right along with it."

Showering can kill you!

Get out of that shower! Don't get in that bathtub! Washing with soap in hot water can kill you.

That's the latest revelation of the Environmental Protection Agency, whose researchers have found that scrubbing off dirt with soap and hot water can cause cancer.

According to the experts, hot chlorinated water reacts with dirt in such a way that chloroform is released into the environment. Chloroform is a cancer-causing agent, scientists believe.

"Chloroform can become strong enough in some homes that when you heat the water it becomes volatile and can be inhaled," explained Chris Rice, an air pollution expert.

"Drinking the water isn't a problem, it's just when particles become airborne and you breathe them.

"Chloroform exposure plays a role in causing cancer and other chronic non-cancer health problems. We don't think people should panic, but we think this is a fruitful line of research."

Rice recommends that people concerned about this problem remember to ventilate rooms where hot, steamy water is present.

Others can just wait until more research is in to decide if they want to give up washing.

"We have a new study in Baltimore where 160 people will carry personal exposure monitors that will record the same air they breathe," Rice said.

"We want to try to see what are the chloroform levels people are being exposed to. Right now we don't know the risk from cancer.

TURN DOWN THE LIGHTS — YOU'LL HEAR BETTER

...and other illuminating facts

Lighting affects how hard you work, how well you hear and even the way you deal with other people, experts say.

By ELAINE ROBERTS
Weekly Worldview

Here are some fascinating facts about lighting:

● Generally, the brighter the room, the better employees work. But if the light is too bright, it becomes irritating and uncomfortable and results in a poorer work performance.

● Men are in a better mood with brighter illumination. But further study is necessary to find out how light affects the moods of women.

● The brighter the lighting, the easier it is to concentrate, study and learn. Of course, if you're reading sharp black ink on a white background, you need less light than if you are reading gray pencil marks on a faded yellow page.

Nonuniform lighting comes from windows or lamps at various points throughout the room, while uniform lighting can be fluorescent lights positioned regularly through out the room or the ceiling.

● If lighting is nonuniform throughout the room, the area seems more spacious. Rooms that have uniform lighting but low illumination are seen to be cramped and small.

● Lighting affects the direction people face when they enter a room. They automatically try to face the direction that the light is coming from.

● The lower the lighting in a room, the better you can hear background sounds.

● People tend to speak more softly and make less noise when the lighting is low.

Super volcano wiped out world's animals!

WASHINGTON — Long before the dinosaurs were wiped off the earth, an even worse cataclysm occurred: A million-year-long volcanic eruption that claimed 96 percent of the world's animals!

That's the newly published report from the journal Science. The mile-deep lava flow happened in what is now Siberia 250 million years ago.

Gould calls it, "The granddaddy of all extinctions." He says the disaster was far more deadly than the events that killed the dinosaurs about 65 million years ago.

poured from the earth "like scorching cookie dough," covering thousands of miles. About one cubic mile of lava spewed out each year for a million years.

Close to 90 percent of all marine species and 70 percent of all land vertebrates were wiped out, along with most of the plant life

14 signs your marriage is going down the tubes!

You can save a [illegible]ge by nipping trouble in the bud, says a top marriage counselor and author. All you [illegible] to do is learn to recognize the 14 danger signals that [illegible] marital disaster.

"Marriages are like boats — they require regular maintenance to keep them sailing smoothly," said Dr. Alan McGinnis, author of Confidence: How to Succeed at Being Yourself. "The smart couples are alert to the warning signs and make needed repairs quickly."

Here are the 14 signs your marriage is in trouble:

1 It's depressing to think of spending your future together. "One of the pleasures of a great love is that you never stop dreaming together about the future," McGinnis explained.

2 You never speak about your shared history. Remembering the past with each other strengthens a couple's bonds.

3 You no longer have common interests.

4 Your spouse brings out the worst in you. You don't like yourself when you're with your mate. In a good marriage, your partner brings out the best in you.

5 You don't introduce friends to your mate anymore. This is a sign you are pulling out of your marriage relationship.

6 You no longer talk about ideas and feelings. Sharing personal beliefs is a gift of love and to stop this sharing is to withhold from your mate.

7 You hate spending money on your spouse. By doing this, you're passing up a chance to please your mate.

8 You dread going home to your mate. This is a distancing technique like drinking too much, going to bed early and alone or waiting to go to bed until you're sure your spouse is asleep.

9 Your sex life has become boring.

10 You don't laugh together anymore. Humor is an important part of an exciting relationship.

11 You confide in others more than in your mate.

Expert tells how to nip problems in the bud!

12 You no longer take pleasure in surprising your mate. Couples who are in love enjoy planning unexpected pleasures for their spouses.

13 Disagreements always become fights. Using disagreements as an opportunity to take jabs at each other shows something is awry.

14 You get furious over your mate's idiosyncrasies. These quirks can be bothersome, of course — but when they're unbearably irritating, your marriage is on shaky ground.

Burglar impaled on Weapon of Justice!

BONN, Germany — A burglar was killed as he tried to flee an art museum — and impaled himself on a sword held by a statue called "The Weapon of Justice!"

Police say burglar Peter Schultz was surprised by a security guard after breaking into the Kleinmann Museum of Art.

He ran around a corner — straight into the famous sculpture, which features a blindfolded soldier extending a sword.

UNDERTAKER FINED FOR SOLICITING BUSINESS FROM LIVE HOSPITAL PATIENTS!

CORUNA, Spain — Hard-hearted undertaker Pablo Corral has been fined $28,000 for waltzing into hospital rooms — and soliciting business from dying patients!

"This guy would stroll in, inform patients they were going to die and ask them if he could lay them out when they were gone," said outraged tape measure and begin measuring them for a coffin right there on the spot. Some patients were so stunned they nearly died from the shock."

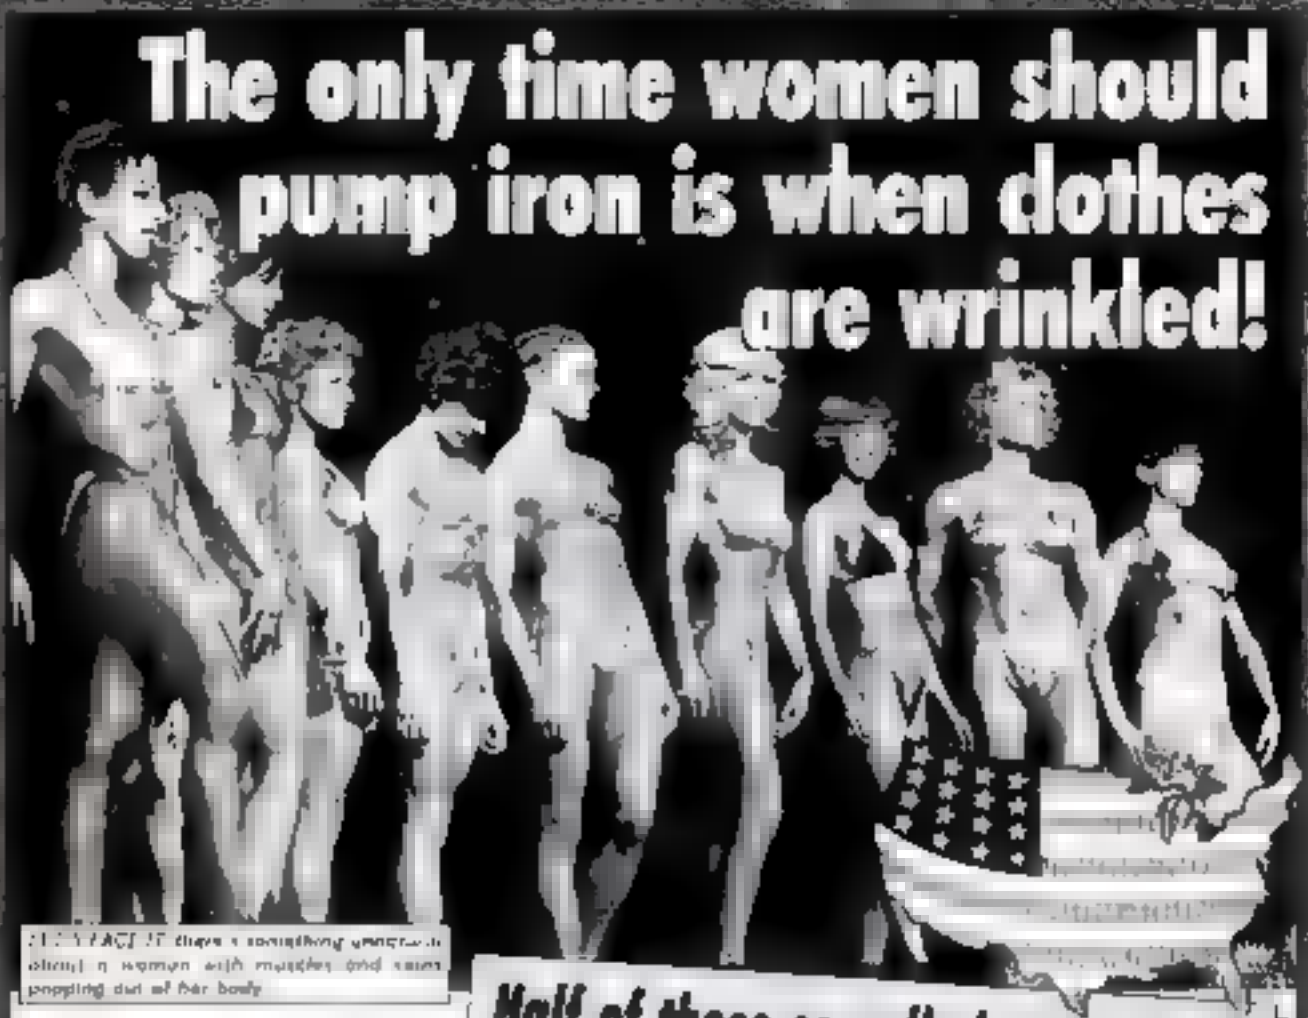
MY AMERICA ■ MY AMERICA By ED ANGER

The only time women should pump iron is when clothes are wrinkled!



ED'S FACT: If there's something grotesque about a woman with muscles and veins popping out of her body

Half of these so-called women look like Arnold Schwarzenegger in a wig and a two-piece bathing suit.

Lady bodybuilders make me madder than a cowboy on a cattle drive who gets a blister on his behind!

I don't think I have ever seen anything more disgusting than a bevy of those beefy broads in bikinis. Half of these so-called women look like Arnold Schwarzenegger in a wig and a two-piece bathing suit.

These gals should be wearing tents — not bikinis.

Let's face it, there's something unnatural about a woman with muscles and veins popping out of her body. And the guys who judge these contests must have rocks in their heads.

How can you call a woman with a body like Conan the Barbarian beautiful?

What's goofy about these lady bodybuilders is that they're not trying to develop their bodies to feminine perfection — they're trying to look like men.

The gals who develop perfect-looking female bodies end up on stage at Atlantic City for the Miss America contest.

And the only thing that pops out at the Miss America pageant are the eyes of the men in the audience.

Part of the blame for this bizarre rise of iron-pumping lesbos lies with today's wimpy men. I've gone into a lot of these workout gyms only to be disgusted by what I've seen.

First there's the lady wrestlers.

They're dressed in form-fitting workout clothes and are busting their behinds lifting weights.

But the so-called guys in these gyms are the real spectacle.

They're all wearing pastel-colored outfits and getting in a tizzy if their blow-dried hair gets mussed.

They lift weights a little, then spend most of their time preening and posing in front of mirrors and gossiping about new oils to smear on their muscles.

Guys like that need to get tough — and those muscle maidens need to get a husband.

The only time gals should pump iron is to take the wrinkles out of clothes.

Wedding [illegible] tragic when [illegible] of women make [illegible] for flowers

4 GALS DIE IN STAMPEDE FOR BRIDAL BOUQUET!

By JOE BERGER

SYDNEY, Australia — An elegant wedding reception turned to tragedy when beaming bride Susan DiSenza threw her bridal bouquet into the air — and four hapless gals were trampled to death trying to catch the coveted prize!

"I've never seen anything like it — those women just went nuts," ralled rattled Pastor Edward Weeks.

"There were about 30 of them crowded around waiting for Susan to throw her flowers. But when she threw them, she threw them off to the side rather than right into the crowd and everybody just sort of stampeded in that direction.

"The next thing I knew these ladies in their fancy party dresses were screaming and trampling all over each other like a herd of wild animals. Before anybody could do anything, there were bodies lying everywhere."

Eleven injured women were rushed to a nearby hospital, where four of them — including maid of honor Audrey Mearbe, 24 — were pronounced dead on arrival.

Also killed in the run for the roses were Rita Nelson, 29, and Alicia Hunt and Bethene Brubaker, both 30. Doctors said the victims all died of head and neck injuries.

The spine-chilling spectacle unfolded just 30 minutes after the blue-eyed bride and her new hubby Duncan said "I do" before 300 hushed guests at a picturesque church outside the city. "It had been the happiest day of my life, right up till the moment all hell broke loose," said heartsick Susan, 21.

After the wedding, we'd moved over to the reception hall for the reception, and everybody was drinking and eating and having a ball. When it came time to throw the bouquet, all the women were bunched up there waiting — hoping they'd catch it and be the next one to get married, you know.

"Well, I didn't want to play favorites — and I threw it right at anybody, so I tossed it to one side, way up high like the air. And before I knew what was happening, people were stampeding all over each other and falling down, and you could actually hear the bones breaking.

"I heard everybody screaming and looked over and saw my best friend Audrey lying there with her eyes wide open — and I knew her neck was broken and she was dead.

"It all happened so damn fast. Just like that, my dream wedding had become the worst nightmare of my life."

Good News for Millions!

NEW BOOK CAN HELP YOU BEAT CHRONIC FATIGUE SYNDROME

Chronic Fatigue Syndrome is a puzzling — and frightening — condition that may affect millions of Americans.

If you have CFS or one of its close relatives, fibromyalgia and environmental illness, you probably don't know it.

But you do know you've been miserable.

Your life must seem like one doctor's appointment after another.

You have experienced a medical book of symptoms. From severe fatigue, numerous allergies and severe depression to digestive disorders, headaches and mood swings to joint and muscle pain, night sweats and weight loss.

Your medicine cabinet is a pharmacy of prescription medications designed to treat one symptom or another. Nothing, however, seems to help. Your problem may be chronic fatigue syndrome.

A new book, packed with all the latest information on chronic fatigue, can help you to rid your life of these conditions, shake off those symptoms and lead you on the road to vitality.

"Chronic Fatigue, Fibromyalgia & Environmental Illness" is the work of Burton Goldberg, publisher of Alternative Medicine Magazine, and his respected team of editors.

They've compiled the experiences of 26 top doctors who have reversed chronic fatigue conditions with clinically approved alternative therapies.

Of course, the treatments are not meant to substitute for the advice and care of a physician or health-

The book details nightmare stories of patients who suffered for years — even experiencing family breakups — before a chronic fatigue problem was diagnosed.

User-friendly icons in the book's margins highlight important facts, define medical terms, and even give you phone numbers to seek help.

You'll learn how chronic fatigue experts test for the condition and about common herbs that have been used successfully to treat CFS, fibromyalgia and environmental illness. And as a special bonus, you will receive a free copy of "Alternative Medicine Magazine" with each book.

"This book can start you on your path to full recovery," said Goldberg, an acclaimed lecturer, commentator and publisher of "Alternative Medicine: The Definitive Guide" — the Bible of alternative medicine.

"You will discover the many factors that can contribute to the development of these disorders, factors frequently overlooked by conventional medicine. You don't have to endure your illness."

TRAMP'S MISSION OF MERCY SAVES ABANDONED BABY

...& wins the hearts of an entire town!

By BEATRICE DEXTER
Evening Herald Staff

AMIENS, France — A shabby street bum became an instant hero and has been showered with kindness from grateful townsfolk after he found an abandoned baby girl last winter and ran five miles in sub-freezing temperatures to save her life.

Vellied vagrant Ratelaine Khorchef discovered a plastic bag containing the newborn infant as he walked through a snow-covered street in January. He raced off on his marathon dash for mercy, clutching the nearly dead baby to his arms.

"After a mile I was exhausted," Khorchef, 33, said in an interview. "I thought I was going to die. But I told myself that that baby has to live.

"If I die, that's okay — I've never done anything good in my life. I told myself, 'But I have to save that baby.'"

Khorchef — a native of Algeria who has lived in France for more than 20 years — was shivering and nearly frozen himself when he found the abandoned baby.

The temperature had plummeted to only 3 degrees on the frigid day when he made his discovery.

"I was so cold," he recalled. "I hadn't had anything to eat in days. I had knocked at so many doors and I'd gotten just a little piece of bread and a bowl of warm soup, that's all. I was really desperate. I was at the point of tears.

"I took a walk through the forest since there was nowhere else to go. Suddenly I heard a cry. I thought at first it was a cat, but then I realized it was a baby I heard. I followed the cries to a bag lying in the snow, which I opened.

"Inside was a baby, a beautiful baby girl. Her body was blue from the cold. She had just been born. The umbilical cord was still attached."

Knowing that he was all that stood between life and death for the tiny baby girl, Khorchef summoned all his strength to make a desperate dash for help. After his ten-mile run, he stumbled into an inn outside Amiens, clutching the infant bundled up in his jacket.

Medics arrived in minutes and the baby was rushed to a hospital where she recovered from her ordeal. Since then, while police seek the mother who abandoned her, Khorchef has been enjoying the world's gratitude of overtures.

A Red Cross nurse hands the healthy baby girl to Khorchef. Grateful townspeople have since helped the hero turn his life around with a job and a place to live.

The homeless bum now lives in a [illegible] and has been given a job. He says he wants to find the baby's mother and help her.

"I asked the doctor if I could see the baby and they let me. I wanted to hold her and caress her.

"She is a love and I want to be her godfather.

"I saved her life and she saved mine. Now I just want the baby's

Fortune cookie makes marriage crumble

By JUNE SAWYER / Weekly World News

ANCONA, Italy — A man filed a whopping $100,000 suit against a bakery, claiming his wife ditched him after she cracked open a fortune cookie that advised her to find a new husband.

In papers filed here, Dario Milani alleges that Flavio's Bakery was grossly negligent in producing the cookie that deprived him of the love and companionship of his estranged wife Bianca.

The 34-year-old businessman admitted that his 14-year marriage had been a stormy one. But he insisted that he and his wife had been seeing a marriage counselor and were getting along fine when she got the cookie and left him for a young er man.

"The cookie company cost me my marriage and I think I ought to be compensated," Milani said.

"Bianca turned [illegible] soon as she read that damn fortune and there is no doubt that it is responsible for our divorce."

Ironically, Milani said his wife opened the cookie at the end of a romantic Chinese dinner.

"We were working so hard to save our marriage and the meal was kind of a celebration," he said. "We were really enjoying ourselves talking about old times and our bright new future together.

"When the waiter brought us the fortune cookie, Bianca made a big deal out of opening it. She held it high and said, 'Let's see what the future really holds for us.'

"But when she pulled out the fortune, it didn't say anything about us. It said 'This is the year to kindle new romantic relationships. Throw off the old and muddle with the new.' From that moment on Bianca acted [illegible] into an apartment [illegible] years.

"Then she filed for divorce and announced that they were going to marry."

Salvatore Dolcetto, the bakery's attorney, called Milani's allegations preposterous.

"The couple's marriage was over long before they saw that cookie," he said. "Besides, any rational person knows fortunes are meant to be fun. You really can't take them seriously."

Mrs. Milani refused to comment on the suit or her impending divorce. "Dario is free to say or do what he likes," she said.

WEEKLY WORLD NEWS SPECIAL EDITION!

Dear Dotti: As an attractive and sensual woman of 28, it has finally occurred to me that I can never settle down and marry. The reason? To confine my lovin' to one man would be criminal!

I don't want to brag, but I'm a love-making extraordinaire — and I've decided to devote my life to sharing my charms with every man on Earth. My problem is my family. Mom and Dad get physically ill whenever I mention my life's goal. And my brothers are trying to make me see a psychiatrist, so they clearly don't understand me. That's where you come in. How can I make them see the light?

— Sharon in Arkansas

Dear Sharon: Your family will see the light when they realize that psychiatrist bill is cheaper than your ugly brothers — and for Pete's sake, see that shrink YESTERDAY!

Hotheaded granny curses like a sailor!

Dear Dotti: Grandma moved in with my parents and me a few months ago and she's made our lives the pits. The worst part is she's got a temper like you wouldn't believe — and cusses her head off at me for no reason. I'm 18, and I promise I'm not doing anything to upset her. On the contrary, I bow and scrape like she's royalty. But I've had it with the old goat. How can I get her out of my life for good? — David in Oklahoma

I can't understand why he's suddenly ignoring me. I believe that he really loved me and I know that I still have strong feelings about him. Do you think he's trying to dump me? — Puzzled in Ohio

Dear Puzzled: Wake up, girl! The bum dumped you three months ago. Forget him, it's over.

Idiot co-worker makes so much as look at her wrong, she runs home with a string of profanities that would curl your hair. What is wrong with her? When I was a kid I respected my elders and appreciated what my parents did for me. — Stay in Quebec

Dear Sue: Let the brat know she has one chance to clean up her act. If that doesn't work, get serious — and give her up for adoption!

ROGER in Nevada

Granny curses like a sailor!

Dear Dotti: Grandma moved in with my parents and me a few months ago and she's made our lives the pits. The worst part is she's got a temper like you wouldn't believe — and curses like a sailor! I'm 18, and I promise I'm not doing anything to upset her. On the contrary, I bow and scrape like she's royalty. But I've had it with the old goat. How can I get her out of my life for good? — David in Oklahoma

Dear David: If you're still living with your parents at 18, you're as big a freeloader as Granny. Keep your fat mouth shut — and learn to live with things you're in no position to change!

Nit-picking hubby gives me the silent treatment!

Dear Dotti: My husband of nine years is driving me crazy over nothing. And now he's been giving me the silent treatment for two and a half weeks. I come from a large family where everybody fussed and fought, but we got things out in the open and put our [illegible] behind us. Do you know how to make somebody end the silent treatment? — Had It in Rhode Island

Dear Had It: No

Bratty kid lives like a queen — at my expense!

Dear Dotti: My daughter is living on Easy Street but does she show her appreciation? NO! She gets a fat allowance and lives in a room fit for a queen. She has her own telephone. Her closet is full of designer clothes. Her bookcase is filled with books, addresses and phone numbers of 43 new dates!

Dear Trusting Mom in Kansas: Would a 13-year-old girl be in your hut unless her legs are moving?

Dear Starstruck in California: You're not facing "stardom" with "stardom" — and in case you didn't know it, that's the ONLY reason you have so many "pen-pal" friends!

Dear Crushed in Iowa: I didn't call you a failure — but I should have!

Mom refuses to return my calls!

Dear Dotti: I've been seeing this man [illegible] for three months. He called me every day, but his calls started getting farther and farther apart. Now he won't even return my calls. I can't understand why he's suddenly ignoring me. I believe that he really loved me and I know that I still have strong feelings about him. Do you think he's trying to dump me? — Puzzled in Ohio

Dear Puzzled: Wake up, girl! The bum dumped you three months ago. Forget him, it's over.

Idiot co-worker makes my body is fairly easy to get along with. But there's this one girl who does everything in her power to make people hate her. She has an opinion about everything in spite of the fact that she is a dyed-in-the-wool idiot. And if she takes more than one shower a week I'd be shocked. It wouldn't be so bad if she just worked quietly at her computer. But she's always up making our lives miserable. What can we do? — Roger in Nevada

Dear Roger: If so many people are offended by his stinky one of you should have the guts to stand up to her and say so. Since you're too wimpy to do the right thing, I strongly suggest that you sabotage her computer until the boss gets his fill of lame excuses — and fires the idiot!

The REAL reason people use drugs!

BY KELLY FRANCES / Weekly World News

People use drugs because they're afraid of intimacy with other people, says a top expert.

"Fear of intimacy is very common in this country," psychiatrist Paul Fink declared. "People want to be close to other people. It's a deep need that everybody has.

"But many people are afraid of that intimacy they crave so deeply.

"Some people are afraid of being rejected.

"Others are afraid of losing their independence or even their identity if they become too close to another person."

So to protect themselves against intimacy, people use drugs to retreat into their own private world.

And they're likely to use certain drugs, such as cocaine and marijuana, when they're with a group of people at parties, said Dr. Fink.

"At parties, people often believe that because they are doing drugs together, they're sharing emotional intimacy.

"But when you use drugs, you erect a wall between yourself and the people you're with. Your high is private.

"And although a group of people who are high may laugh and giggle, there's no warmth because of a shared joke.

"People are high from the drug — not from each other. People who relate to other people easily have little desire to use drugs — because their lives are already rich with meaningful relationships.

"If you're lonely, taking drugs will only make you feel more isolated," warned Dr. Fink. "Instead, work at having an ordinary social life. Do simple things like going to lunch with people in the office or inviting a neighbor over for coffee.

"The relationships you form will be much more meaningful and satisfying than anything you may have experienced on drugs."

11 EASY TIPS TO MAKE YOUR CLOTHES LAST LONGER!

You can make your clothes last longer by following these simple tips from fabric-care expert Elizabeth Lester:

- Hang clothes immediately after you take them off to help keep their shape.
- Remove all objects from pockets before hanging.
- Hang up jackets unbuttoned.
- Hang up sweaters and other knits folded on a hanger, or store them flat.
- Don't use pins to hang shirts or trousers — use clothespins or hangers with clips.
- Tend to spots and stains immediately. Age can make them hard to remove.
- Dispose stains with your dry cleaner. Be sure to point out spots that contain sugar, which can turn brown under heat.
- Have matching pieces cleaned together. If there are any color changes, the pieces will still match.
- Have garments cleaned frequently to help prolong their life. Ground-in dirt can act as an abrasive and wear out fibers.
- Make sure to remove stains from clothes before putting them into the dryer. Heat can set the stains and make them impossible to get out.

SOME GREAT IDEAS THAT FLOPPED

By JUDD SANDERS

Every now and then an idea that seems perfumed with the sweet smell of success turns out to be a real stinker.

The disastrous Edsel was one such idea, but there are plenty of other less famous — but just as ill-starred — flops that might make it into the Bad Idea Hall of Fame.

Here, from Chicago columnist Richard Roeper, are some of the more spectacular failures in all fields:

Smell-O-Vision: An idea whose time never came. This was supposed to be the audience pleaser of the 1960s but turned out to be one of the cinema's biggest bombs.

Michael Todd Jr. produced a multi-million spectacular called The Scent of Mystery which featured 12 different smells ranging from peach to shoe polish. The odor was released from a small "scent vent" located behind every seat in the theater but it did nothing for movie lovers. The movie was billed as "the first movie that stinks on purpose" and sank out of sight after a few weeks.

Time Capsule Catastrophe: In July 1968, Washingtonians thoughtfully arranged for a time capsule to be secreted in a 23-ton boulder on the northeast side of the Washington Monument. Less thoughtfully they neglected to note the location of the top-secret hole and once construction might nobody could remember exactly it was. Since then efforts to locate it have turned up not a trace of the capsule.

McDonald's Misses: Fast food lovers may be never ever at McDonald's outside Chicken McNuggets, Chopped Beefsteak Sandwich and the McDonald's all three disgusting flops when they were introduced in test markets. Their best thought was the McHuh, a pork sandwich that dripped barbecue sauce all over unhappy customers. It failed all attributes test run at 1,300 stores and cost a pretty penny as it went down the tubes.

Mossy Movie: The all-time greatest all was dense was a production by Howard Hughes entitled Vendetta starring Jane Russell and Richard Egan. Filmmakers have 82 million on underwater footage filmed in Hawaii and the Caribbean that was never used and wound up building a special 30-million gallon tank in Hollywood just to complete the treasure-diving film.

Worst of all was the premiere, an incredible publicity grab featuring a helicopter dropping 5,000 gallons of water on the crowd. Instead of a splash, the water turned into a gooey mess and dropped onto a Florida lake where they watched a special preview version of Underwater while rubber suits made everyone comfortable. Unfortunately the sound system didn't function at all that night. Critics swam away not to the artistic merits but rather the waterlogged mess.

Supertrain Fizzle: TV's greatest flop this series that cost $9 million and crashed and burned after only a handful of episodes but provided the most expensive set in TV history. The network-owned train exploding program first aired on February 7, 1979, and featured an electric-powered train that traveled from coast to coast in 56 hours.

The Supertrain had a full-size swimming pool, a disco and a gym — but no jobs. The producer was ousted inside of a month and shortly after a third episode of the show's [illegible] ship. But nothing could save the boob tube boondoggle, which was finally canceled that July.

The Goofy Spruce Goose: The world's largest airplane, the spruce goose, was touted as a flying boat when it was produced by billionaire Howard Hughes back in 1947. It could carry 750 passengers or 60 tons of cargo and the wing spanned longer than a football field. Hughes took the giant plane up one time but it never flew again.

The plane was never used for anything, but Hughes was so fond of it that he loaned it from the government which owned it for $37,500 a month, reportedly a special $50,000 bonus for it and spent $1 million a year to house and maintain it until a museum picked it up.

Pointy Turf Flop: Astroturf has had its share of dumpers when people realize how stupid they are. Astroturf is one of these — an artificial grass that is here to stay because it saves money.

The stuff is unsafe and darned uncomfortable when athletes fall or slide on it. But it's being used more and more in sports arenas despite the opposition of both players and fans.

Even the very successful McDonald's has some flops in its past. McHuh and

Ford had high hopes for the Edsel, which turned out to be one of the biggest [illegible]

Did my son get his girlfriend pregnant?

JANE in Deming.

Dear Serena: My family is in a terrible fix and you're the only person who can help us. My son's girlfriend is pregnant. She says the baby is his and she wants $2,000 to get an abortion. Serena, my son swears that the baby can't possibly be his.

Please tell us the truth. My son is only 11 years old and his whole life is riding on what your crystal ball re-

[illegible]. — Jane in Deming

Dear Jane. Your son's girlfriend is not even pregnant. she is just trying to steal money from him. But your son isn't being totally honest with you, either. He has been sleeping with this woman pregnant, which she'll find out when she visits the doctor next week.

Dear Serena: I'm 6-foot-8 and everyone says I should play basketball in college but I hate the sport. I've played it all through high school but now I want to quit and become a professional beach volleyball star. There are a lot of colleges offering me basketball scholarships and my dad says I should take one but I just don't want to. Please look in your crystal ball and tell me if I will make it big in beach volleyball. If so, I'll kiss basketball goodbye. — Super Jock in Palo City

Dear Super Jock. You lack the experience to make a living playing professional volleyball right now. You should accept the basketball scholarship at the West Coast school that spoke to you last year. The volleyball coach there will allow you to join his team. Being on that team will be very rewarding for you — especially when it wins the national championship in 2001.

Dear Serena: My daughter is going to jail for a crime that she says she didn't commit. She has already been convicted and sentenced to two years, but I'd like to think that she isn't guilty. The reason I'm writing to you is because I want to know the whole truth, Serena. Quite frankly, I don't want to spend a ton of money paying for all kinds of fancy lawyers to appeal her case if she's just going to be sent to jail anyway. Did she really do it? — Theresa in Broward

THERESA in Broward.

Dear Theresa: Your daughter committed the crime — but if she appeals her conviction it will be overturned on a technicality. What you should do is something only you can decide.

PERSONAL TO...

Thankful in Lubbock: I'm happy to help you get your dog back. Please be careful to keep your back gate locked next time.

Distraught in Logan: Yes, your 4-year-old son set the fire. You should get treatment for him before he develops a lifelong problem.

WHAT is your secret message from the Orient this week? It's easy and fun to decipher. Here's the key to decoding your message:

If the number of letters in your first name is 5 or less, subtract that number from 7. If there are more than 5 letters in your first name, subtract the total from 12.

Now take the result and find your key letter in the word ORIENT above. Starting at the upper left corner of the box below, check each one of your key letters as it appears from left to right. The letters below each of your key letters spell out a coded message for you.

THIS WEEK'S SIX LUCKIEST LOTTERY NUMBERS:

CLIP AND [illegible] IN YOUR WALLET

Weekly World News has purchased supercomputer rights to the world's most powerful supercomputer — and we use it to pick the six luckiest lottery numbers every week!

The Swiss-built computer, called Bright Green, has the ability to calculate which lottery numbers are most likely to come up each week, based on previous performance and established tendencies. The numbers are good for the week the NEWS is on the newsstand.

The computer scans all numbers selected in lotteries across America over the past year to provide a statistical base for predicting results. More value is given to recently selected numbers.

Using all available data, the computer picks the luckiest numbers for each week. By

When brothers couldn't pay for [redacted] that separated them . . .

HEARTLESS DOCS REJOIN SIAMESE TWINS!

By JUNE SAWYER
Weekly World News

BARCELONA, Spain — Surgeons here have cruelly re-attached a pair of Siamese twins they separated a month ago — because the young men couldn't pay their bill!

"This is an outrage beyond belief," said Marcelo Albenir, attorney for the twins, Pedro and Manuel Cantero.

"These doctors are playing God with the lives of two young men and don't even feel any remorse. We'll sue them for everything they have got."

Drs. Andres Orbea and Matias Menendez don't argue that the surgery to reattach the 23-year-old Cantero brothers at the hips was orthodox. But they insist that they were within their rights to do it because the Canteros [redacted] engaged in a conspiracy to defraud and deprive us of our fees."

"The Canteros brothers paid for the procedure with a bad check and had absolutely no intention of making it good," said Dr. Orbea.

"If we hadn't taken drastic action to punish them, it would have encouraged others to do the same."

The Caseros were in seclusion at the home of a relative and were unavailable for comment.

But attorney Albenir confirmed that they are devastated by the incredible turn of events.

"They are confused, angry and depressed," said Albenir. "After a few short weeks of freedom from each other, they are prisoners of conjoined bodies again."

Public opinion on the shocking reverse-surgery was running about 50 percent for, 50 percent [redacted], in newspaper [redacted] taken after the separation.

In medical circles [redacted] were evenly divided on the ethics of the surgery, although 72 percent had serious [redacted] about the morality of it.

"I believe that we are going to see many such reverse surgical procedures in years to come," said the Madrid-based internist, Dr. Guillermo Perez Irazar.

"As more patients find it impossible to finance medical care, doctors are going to think twice about letting them off the hook."

TEST YOURSELF:

DO YOU KNOW HOW TO BE INTIMATE WITH YOUR LOVER?

Want to keep your special relationship filled with romance and passion? Then [illegible] to be intimate with your sweetheart, a top psychologist says.

"When you're truly intimate, not only does your sex life improve, but so does every aspect of your relationship," said Dr Martin Rosenman.

Dr Rosenman had devised a 10-question quiz which will help you rate yourself. For each of the following statements, indicate whether you consider it True or False. Then check the answers and the analysis.

By JUNE SAWYER
Weekly World News

1. One partner always gets more benefit out of the relationship than the other.

2. Pleasant experiences are more enjoyable when shared.

3. A good sexual relationship depends on both partners feeling equally passionate at the same time.

4. In the best relationships, men are always the more assertive.

5. When lovers reveal all their innermost feelings to each other it destroys the mystery and magic of the relationship.

6. It's best to unconsciously admit being attracted to a member of the opposite sex other than your spouse.

7. Your spouse should not try to change you at all.

8. You are comfortable being your "real self" with your partner.

9. It's okay to sometimes laugh and joke during sex.

10. It's good for your partner to tell you his or her faults.

ANALYSIS:

Give yourself a point for every answer that agrees with Dr Rosenman's:

1. False. "If you answered true then you may feel your partner is taking advantage of you," he said.

2. True. "The pleasure of sharing experiences greatly enhances intimacy. If you answered false, ask your partner to share your pleasure."

3. False. "If you answered true you're making sex into a job. Adopt a more relaxed attitude."

4. False. Giving up the preconceived notions placing rigid limitations on male and female sex roles increases your potential for intimacy.

5. False. "Sharing inner feelings allows you to grow closer to each other."

6. True. "Ironically, those who talk about such feelings are usually more jealous than those who keep them to themselves."

7. True. "Part of the fun of intimacy is the challenge of changing habits for your partner."

8. True. "Most of us wear a public mask, but intimacy flourishes when you feel so secure in your partner's presence you can let your real self shine through."

9. True. "Sex can be cheerful, humorous and playful. Relax."

10. True. "Encourage your partner to tell you when he or she is feeling self critical. That acceptance breeds intimacy."

If you scored 10, Dr Rosenman said your potential for intimacy in your relationship is excellent. If you scored nine, it is very good. Seven or eight shows good potential, while four to six means fair. Your potential is poor if you scored two or three — and very poor if one or zero.

Dr Rosenman is the author of Loving Styles: A Guide for Intimate Relationships.

Miracle nun died 450 years ago — and is STILL healing the sick!

SISTER Eustochia lived during the 15th century, but is still performing miracles today.

A 15th-century Sicilian nun, credited with a least 32 miraculous healings, has been made a saint by the Catholic Church.

In an open-air ceremony attended by more than 100,000 believers, Pope John Paul II canonized Eustochia Calafato.

"The Vatican investigating commission has begun to document her miraculous healings — so far, 32 have been reported," said Sister Chiara Angelino, mother superior of the Italian convent founded by the saint in the 1400s.

"Now, we're looking into the healing of Letterio Mangano, a 64-year-old man doctors had sent home from the hospital to die."

Church officials spoke directly with two physicians who attested to the man's astonishing recovery in 1984 — and Father Antonio Catroli, head of the Vatican investigation, declared, "The miracle is without a doubt documented and authenticated."

Church investigators say saintly sister has healed an amazing 32 dying patients!

One of the doctors interviewed by the Vatican was Dr. Carlo Cuppone, head of neurology at the Regina Margherita Hospital in Messina.

"It was a miraculous healing," said Dr. Cuppone. "Mangano had a viral infection that had killed many people in southern Italy, and had been in a deep coma for days. Finally, we decided we could do nothing more for him, and told the family they could bring him home to be with his loved ones."

But that night, as the man lay near death, his daughter and other family members began to fervently pray to Sister Eustochia, whose picture they had in their home.

That night, Mangano came out of the coma — and asked for coffee and pasta.

"This was incredible," said Dr. Cuppone. "It was a miracle."

He rushed to the man's home with Dr. Carmelo Di Pietro.

"It was a real shock to see that man — whom I thought I would be filling a death certificate for — calmly sitting up in bed drinking coffee and eating pasta," said Dr. Di Pietro.

"We examined him — and realized he had recovered. We could not give any scientific explanation for it. And I readily confirmed it to the Vatican."

But the church says another miracle involving Sister Eustochia has been ongoing for five centuries. Her body, which lies in a glass coffin in the convent, has not decomposed.

THE TOP 10 LIES GUYS TELL GALS!

By WALTER BENDER, Weekly World News

There are 10 top lies that men tell women, says a leading expert. Here they are:

1. Men lie about their height. If a man is just an inch or two under six feet tall, he will usually claim to be a six-footer, says psychologist Gary Emery.

"If a man is obviously less than six feet tall, he will still lie by saying he is two or three inches taller than he really is. And strangely enough even men who are six feet tall or more still add an inch or two to their height when talking to women."

2. Men lie about being lost. A man usually hates to ask anyone for directions. If there's a woman sitting next to him in the car — it's like admitting that he is incompetent. "Instead, he will drive around and around, sometimes for an hour or more, trying to find his way."

3. Men lie about not minding that their mate has a romantic past. "More often than not it bothers them a great deal. They harbor a nagging fear that they don't quite measure up."

4. Men lie about knowing why the car won't start. "To admit that they haven't the foggiest idea is another admission of being unmanly or inadequate," said Dr. Emery. "So when a woman asks if she should call the service station, he replies, 'I'll handle it,' and pulls out the jumper cables. When the mechanic arrives and declares that the engine was flooded, the man replies, 'That's what I thought. I was about to check that next.'"

5. Men lie about their sports ability. "Admitting to sitting on the bench or not having played at all is to admit to not being capable."

6. Men lie about being afraid. "Being afraid is a social stigma for males. So men have nurtured a strong outward image that they maintain at almost any cost — especially around women.

"For instance, if a man is afraid of sharks and his date wants to go swimming, he won't admit his fear," said the psychologist. "Instead, he hides his fear and plays male protector with a standard lie such as 'It's too chilly. You'll catch cold.'"

7. Men lie rather than tell a woman they don't like what she's wearing. "This is practically a necessary lie," said Dr. Emery. "His choices are to ruin the evening or lie. Often, the man hardly notices anyway."

8. Men do not admit to being anxious over calling a woman for a date. "Men just can't bring themselves to admit that a woman has any power over their feelings."

9. Men lie to women about their health. If they are feeling ill, they seldom admit it — even when asked.

10. Men lie about lying. "A man may spend three hours cleaning his apartment before his date arrives, strategically leaving things like a Navy medal or a sports trophy out," said Dr. Emery.

"When his date comes over and asks if he worked hard at making the place so presentable, he will deny it. No matter how hard she presses him about it, he will refuse to admit that he's lying about cleaning up. And he will also refuse to admit that he left his trophy or medal out to impress her."

FREQUENT FIBBERS. Men will tell women they aren't sick when they really are!

The silver-haired hooker struts her stuff for an outfit called Especially for You Dancing Strip O Gram, which provides peelers of all shapes and sizes for birthday bashes and other shindigs.

And it was Strip-O-Gram owner Marilyn Bernhardt who helped the five-wire lady see all she could gain by doffing her duds on late in life.

"Fleta was cleaning house for me one afternoon when somebody called and wanted a very obese stripper for a party," Marilyn recalled. "But unfortunately, I didn't have one that fit.

Private parts chiseled off!

PHANTOM BANDIT HITS STATUES BELOW THE BELT

GLASGOW, Scotland — A slap-happy slasher is prowling the darkened halls of a noted art school, sneaking up on statues of handsome Greek gods — and chopping off their private parts!

The midnight marauder not only lops off a most vital portion of the gods' anatomy — he or she apparently hauls the severed treasures home for souvenirs.

Thus far, eight stone statues at the Glasgow School of Art have wound up minus their manhood. And experts fear the 200-year-old sculptures — once worth $40,000 apiece — may now be worth much less.

"If we could find the missing parts, we'd try to stick them back up there where they belong," said flabbergasted Carol Fraser, the school's entertainments officer.

"But there's been no trace of them. Whoever took them off must have wanted them for themselves."

The private pirate has the school's serious-minded students in a stew. And they've vowed to put the screws to the scoundrel who's savaging their beloved statues.

"There are all sorts of rumors flying about who is doing this terrible thing," Miss Fraser said.

"Some think it is a poor, demented cleaning lady who snatches them on the sly and takes them home in her handbag.

"Or it could be a male member of the staff with an inferiority complex. Those statues were all big boys.

"Another theory is that there is a feminist on the loose. There are a lot of suspects, but whoever it is must be pretty weird indeed."

Steamed-up students have established a 24-hour guard around the one god who's not been robbed of his riches. And they're searching every corner of the school in hopes that the missing parts have now been dumped.

"If we don't find them, we're going to try to

SLIM DOWN FOR SUMMER WITH THESE FIVE FUN DIETS

THE AMAZING HARVARD DIET:

You can lose 10 pounds in eight weeks and keep them off — without giving up any of the foods you like and without feeling hungry or deprived — by following an amazing diet plan devised by a Harvard doctor and another top nutritionist!

With the Harvard Square diet you can still eat three satisfying meals a day and enjoy desserts, snacks and even an evening cocktail.

And what's more you can go off the diet plan two days each week and still peel off the pounds — without the misery and rigorous meal planning of most other diets.

The diet plan was first presented in the book The Harvard Square Diet by Dr Frederick J Stare and Dr Elizabeth M Whelan director of the Appetite Research Center for Science and Health. Here's how it works:

✔ Eat three meals a day — and eat slowly. Just mastication and the chewing sensation are as essential to feeling full as is the actual presence of food in the stomach," explains Dr Stare. "Eating slowly gives your body more time to feel full. And although eat three square meals a day. If you skip a meal, you'll often be driven to overeat at a later meal, and the excess calories you consume will likely be greater than the calories you save by skipping a meal."

✔ Cut food portions in half. Eat your regular breakfast (but for lunch and dinner eat only half the size portions you usually eat — except for low-calorie foods like carrots, lettuce, string beans, asparagus, cabbage, spinach or celery).

That means you should cut your usual portion of meat in half, as well as potatoes and high-calorie vegetables such as lima beans, squash and peas.

✔ Eat a large salad before each day's main meal. "Salads are highly nutritious and help fill you up at a relatively low calorie cost," says Dr Stare. "Then you'll be satisfied with smaller amounts of the main course."

✔ Have your salad either without dressing, or with lemon juice, vinegar or low calorie dressing.

✔ Substitute wherever possible with reduced calorie foods. "Ordinary supermarkets carry such low-fat skim milk instead of whole milk or thin-sliced bread instead of thick-sliced can all help cut your calorie count," Dr Stare notes.

✔ Cut back on snacks by always eating them out of a small container. "It should be a very small size — about two to four ounces. And don't eat any more than two containers daily.

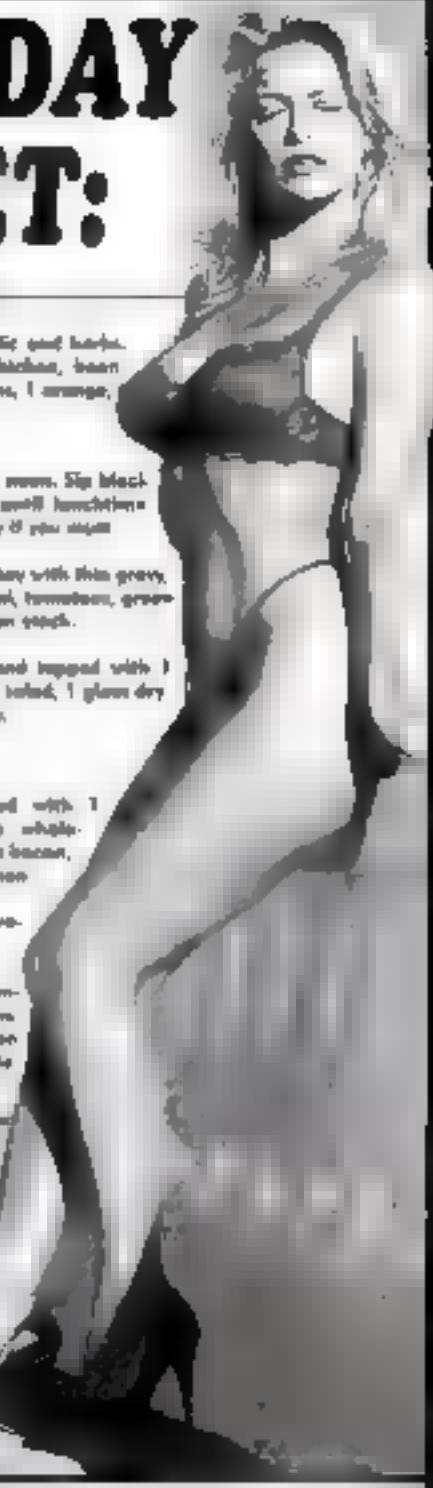
size slice — and then cut it in half and just the other half away for the next day.

✔ When temptation begins to threaten your diet, take little off. "For two days each week, or for special days like birthdays and holidays, you can resume eating regular portions if you wish," says Dr Whelan. "You'll still lose the weight."

✔ Exercise. "A regular exercise program is an important part of this or any diet," states Dr Stare. "Exercise burns off extra calories and makes weight loss easier. Do some form of exercise — walking, calisthenics, even housework — as part of this diet plan."

Dr Stare adds: "You are guaranteed to lose 10 pounds in eight weeks if you follow this diet. You can't miss. You won't feel hungry because by eating slowly you feel your

THE SENSUOUS 4-DAY LOVE DIET:



You can lop off up to seven pounds of ugly fat in just four days with the sensational new Love Diet — a novel approach to weight loss that's as sensuous as it is effective!

The fabulous plan provides for up to four delicious meals a day, and you don't even have to cut out alcohol to reap the fat slashing benefits of diet specialists. Better yet, the most strenuous exercise involved is resting, cuddling — and making love!

Launch your diet on a Friday and continue over a long weekend, until Monday, to guarantee your seven pound loss. This super six point guide will get you on your way:

- Spend as much time as possible in bed. While there indulge in any activity that will help keep your mind off food.
- Experiment with body awareness. Wear a skimpy nightgown, frilly undies or nothing at all. If you must leave the house, wear the sexiest outfit you have.
- Stock up on plenty of good reading material and top the list with sexy novels and lingerie catalogs.
- Persuade a friend or loved one to go on the diet with you.
- Make love at least once a day to accelerate the fat-burning system.
- Massage your mate with a scented oil and make him or her return the favor. Then try to see how you can break the record for the world's longest kiss.

Here's your weekend diet plan:

THE MILLIONAIRE'S DIET:

This luxury weight-loss plan, designed by a British millionaire, is based on a selection of foods that sound rich, but which in fact are very low in calories and fat. They include:

Asparagus: 4 calories per spear. Lobster: 81 calories per oz. Oysters: 2 calories each. Champagne: 90 calories per glass — less than most soft drinks. Strawberries: 2 calories each. Pheasant: 40 calories per oz. Caviar: 75 calories per oz. Smoked Salmon: 30 calories per oz.

Here's a three-day sample menu of luxurious, healthful foods you can eat while watching the pounds disappear:

DAY ONE

$-BREAKFAST:

½ grapefruit, 1 slice of broiled turkey or ham, glass of orange juice mixed with champagne, coffee or tea.

$-LUNCH:

Clear broth or beef bouillon, 1 slice Melba toast with 1 oz. caviar, one apple, coffee or tea.

$-DINNER:

Roast pheasant, no skin, or roast rabbit with a salad of watercress and oranges, coffee or tea.

DAY TWO

$-BREAKFAST:

Small glass unsweetened orange juice mixed with champagne, 1 cup yogurt, 1 banana.

$-LUNCH:

4 oz. grilled or poached chicken breast, 1 cup fresh asparagus tips, low-fat cream.

$-DINNER:

Lobster with lemon juice — about 4 oz. — with salad of sliced dates, glass of orange juice mixed with champagne, 1 cup yogurt, 1 banana.

$-DESSERT:

Fresh sliced strawberries with 3 oz. lemon sherbet.

TOP DOCS' TIPS: Here's how you can spot a liar

By MICHAEL TODD / Weekly World News

You can tell when someone is lying to you just by watching for a few simple clues, top psychologists say.

Worry

Liars give themselves away with facial movements and voice changes they simply can't control and if you learn what these tell-tale symptoms are you can learn to spot a fibber.

"There are no absolute clues to lying itself, only to the emotions or kinds of performance that accompany lies," explained Dr. Paul Ekman, author of the book Telling Lies (Norton). "It's complex. You've got to take into account such elements as whether the lie is likely to be poorly rehearsed, or what emotion would give away the lie. Each type of lie has its unique set of clues. Facial clues should be confirmed by those of the voice or body."

There are some giveaways to lying:

MOVEMENTS OF THE FACIAL MUSCLES:

Certain muscle movements of the face cannot be consciously controlled and therefore offer excellent clues to a person's truthfulness.

Surprise

● The signal of distress or worry is the lifting of the inner part of the eyebrows. It signifies guilt or genuine distress and most people cannot do it at will. Lifting the entire brow shows surprise.

● Anger is displayed with a pseudo narrowed lips mouth, tightens the lips, and lowers and draws the brows together.

Anger

● Fear — an emotion frequently felt by the liar — is signaled by raising the eyebrows up and pulling them together. "Not a single person we have tested can produce this reaction deliberately," Dr. Ekman said.

● The feigned smile is a good indication that someone is fibbing. It is very likely to be uneven — even though both sides of the face make the same motions, one side is usually stronger than the other side, and this creates a lopsided expression.

VOICE AND SPEECH CHANGES:

Try as they may to control them, most people can't hide subtle changes in the pitch of their voices and other patterns.

● Responses are shorter, higher-pitched and more negative when someone is lying.

● Liars are less fluent in their speech: They are more hesitant, and make more grammatical errors and slips of the tongue.

BODY LANGUAGE:

The way people move and position themselves — even the way they use their eyes — can indicate lying.

● Fibbers avoid eye contact.

● Pupils of their eyes dilate and they blink less.

● Liars make fewer hand movements and they are less likely to change their body position.

"We can't tell if someone is lying in some circumstances," warned Dr. Ekman.

"Very often you think people are telling lies and they aren't. Some truthful people can become highly emotional when they are suspected of lying. Almost any emotional signal can be felt by an innocent per-

World famous champion of the 'Power of Positive Thinking' reveals...

HOW TO GET THE MOST OUT OF EVERY DAY OF YOUR LIFE!

By DR. NORMAN VINCENT PEALE

[illegible] thinkers get positive [illegible] because they appreciate the [illegible]ible value of a day, this day — not the next day, but this day, and every day.

Today offers at least 16 waking hours [illegible] be crammed full of opportunity, achievement, joy and excitement. The positive thinker knows that today was made for him.

If you live to be 80 years of age, you will have only 29,200 days. Each of them, therefore, is a precious time [illegible]hes [illegible] to use every day well.

Someone might ask, "But [illegible] about the tough breaks?"

We can learn a great lesson from Ann Person, who discovered how to use positive thinking to make every day count. Here's her story in her own words.

"In October 1968, I lay flat on my back in the tuberculosis ward of Oregon's state hospital. Blankly, I stared up at the ceiling. I realized that I didn't have much to show for the past 40 years. I had frittered my adulthood away.

"As a child as I stitched my first doll's dress I was sure I would grow up to be a famous fashion designer.

"But somewhere along the way my enthusiasm waned and my dream of a glamorous career faded. Never had I felt so alone and scared as in that hospital bed. 'Lord,' I whispered, 'if You'll just get me out of this, I promise I'll do something worthwhile with my life.' My health improved — and I returned to my old job teaching sewing.

Even if you live to 80 — you've got just 29,200 days!

"One day, an appreciative student sent me a huge carton of knit fabric remnants. Knits were new in the market and I'd heard friends complain how knits bagged, sagged and raveled hopelessly. I sat down at my machine and began experimenting.

"The best results, I learned, came from using big stitches, stretching the fabric as I sewed. Word spread, and before I knew it, [illegible]d my new 'stretch and sew' method with knits.

"A phone call came from a woman in a small town. Would I be willing to drive down and demonstrate my techniques to her friends?

"And that one session initiated a chain of classes that kept me on a 500-mile statewide weekly circuit for the remainder of the year.

"I was on fire with an enthusiasm for my work and life that I hadn't known since [illegible]. I copyrighted the name 'Stretch and Sew,' and I began training and licensing others to conduct lessons.

"Incredibly my book Stretch and Sew sold more than a million copies, and led to a five-year TV series called Sewing With Ann Person."

How do other positive thinkers get powerful results when faced with difficult situations? I think of Dr Raj Chopra, a successful educator who received an offer from a Midwestern board of education to become superintendent of their school district. A 60 Minutes report on this school system had declared students' test scores were the worst in the state.

RELIGIOUS LEADER & HUMANITARIAN
Dr Norman Vincent Peale.

Dr Chopra accepted the job. He went to work using positive attitudes to help teachers and students make every day count.

"My first priority was getting out into the schools and visiting with students and teachers," said Dr Chopra. "One morning as I walked through a school hall, a teacher came toward me. I greeted her, 'Good morning, Mrs. Jones.'

"'What's good about it?' she grumped.

"'Mrs. Jones, the morning is good because both of us are looking forward to working with young people today.' Enthusiasm is contagious. But you can't generate it in others unless you have it yourself.

"When I visited my first classroom in the run-down school system I was impressed by the trusting young faces I saw there.

"'I want you all to know I think you are among the brightest children I have met,' I said. 'I'm proud to be associated with you.'

"I saw a look of expectancy brighten their faces.

"In telling our teachers that we appreciate their skills, we also let them know we expected the best.

[illegible] dents' test scores soared to a new high, teacher morale was up, and parents were proud. What made the difference? Positive thinking."

There's a saying, "One never knows what a day may bring forth."

This day, any day, may contain your golden opportunity — perhaps even the big opportunity of a

Woman impregnated egg from 500-year-old

By KEVIN CREED · Weekly World News

Baby will be born in two months, say doctors!

LIMA, Peru — In the most controversial experiment ever, geneticists have fertilized an egg from a 500-year-old female mummy — and implanted it in the womb of a living woman.

And incredibly, the fetus is developing well and will be born in less than two months!

That's the mind-boggling news from Dr. Inez Morales who worked for seven years as assistant vice chairperson at Peru's famed Chosica Fertility Research Laboratory.

Dr. Morales has resigned in protest over the outrageous experiment which she describes as "a nightmarish breech of ethics."

The mummy, the first Inca female ever discovered, was found entombed high on Mount Ampato. It has been nearly perfectly preserved by the freezing temperatures of the Peruvian Andes. It's believed to be the corpse of a 14-year-old girl who was sacrificed to the Inca gods.

It was discovered by two climbers and subsequently sent to America to be displayed in Washington.

But somewhere between its discovery and its arrival in the U.S., Dr. Morales alleges, someone removed an egg from its womb and smuggled it to the Chosica Lab.

Dr. Inez Morales has resigned from the Chosica Fertility Research Laboratory in protest over the outrageous experiment.

It was fertilized with sperm from an anonymous donor and placed in the uterus of a healthy 22-year-old Peruvian peasant woman.

"I can no longer, in good conscience, work with the lab since they made the choice to do this," explained Dr. Morales.

"They are hoping to grab headlines by producing a baby whose parents lived five centuries apart.

"And the frightening thing is that they appear to be succeeding.

"The test-tube baby will have to face life as a freak of nature. He or she will have to live an entire lifetime being probed and studied. There will be no chance for the child to lead a normal life."

Dr. Morales refused to disclose the name of the sperm donor or the woman carrying the child, fearing for their personal safety.

Religious leaders worldwide have expressed outrage and condemnation over the experiment.

"This goes against God's will and violates the laws of nature," said Rev. Jacques Dillons, France's leading Protestant clergyman.

And a spokesman for the Vatican said the Pope plans to condemn the experiment in a major address.

KISSING IN PUBLIC WAS A NO-NO 100 YEARS AGO

. . . and other fascinating facts

By JUNE SAWYER

In 19th-century America, ironclad rules of etiquette separated "proper" people from low class slobs — there was a right way to eat, tip your hat, smile and even a preferred way to snub somebody.

"It was absolutely necessary to know these rules if you wanted to show your good breeding," says Dr. John Kasson, a renowned historian.

Here are a few examples of good manners back then:

HAT TIPPING — When a gentleman met a lady in public, the man was required [illegible] slightly [illegible] lifting his hat just a bit. But men who swept their hats off and circled them in the air before putting them back on their heads [illegible] the "idiots" [illegible]

SMILING OR LAUGHING — "A proper smile was brief and delicate only when [illegible] truly amusing had been said," Dr. Kasson said. "Giggling was unpardonable.

"Telling a joke was considered risky. Some etiquette experts advised people not to tell one in polite society [illegible] the listeners wouldn't get it."

PUBLIC AFFECTION — Kissing a spouse, a relative or a child in public was considered extremely [illegible] and wives were supposed to treat each other in public as if they weren't married.

EATING — "It was considered disgusting to leave teeth marks on a partially eaten piece of food," said Dr. Kasson, author of Rudeness and Civility: Manners in Nineteenth-Century Urban America.

Diners were advised to touch their food as little as possible with their hands — and to use forks even while eating raw fruit!

SNUBBING — The best method of snubbing was a "cut direct" — if another person greeted you with a bow, you met him with a stony stare.

But men were never supposed to snub a woman unless she appeared in heavy makeup or vulgar dress. In that case it was permissible.

EYES — Polite people were not supposed to raise their eyebrows, roll their eyes, or make any other facial contortions, Dr. Kasson added.

"It was considered proper behavior for the eyes to be opened as little as possible, so that the whites did not show."

Werewolves Anonymous

By KEVIN CREED

BATON ROUGE, La. — People plagued by the powerful urge to tear others apart and devour their flesh are being helped — by a new organization called Werewolves Anonymous!

"Werewolves are not just the figment of some filmmaker's imagination. They're people with a very real illness," says Dr Mason Grumbler, a psychologist who has treated more than 300 people with WOL — organically caused Lycan thropy. "They suffer from a physical, hormonal imbalance which affects both brain and body especially at certain times of the month.

"During the full moon particularly, the glands secrete inordinate amounts of testosterone and other chemicals which produce excessive facial hair, increased strength and a dangerous craving for human blood. These physical symptoms are accompanied by a mental condition known as lycanthropy — the delusional belief that one is a wolf."

Dr Grumbler says that when a person is under the influence of the disease the urge to kill becomes virtually irresistible. Medical science has been powerless against WOL — until six years ago. "Werewolves Anonymous began in early 1990 when, by chance, two of my patients met in the waiting room and began sharing their feelings," said Dr Grumbler.

"In the next half-hour when the urge to kill struck, they got together and talked over another through it.

That was the beginning of an unusual self-help organization that now boasts 257 members.

W.A. has made a new man of me, says Peter G. "Before starting the program, I killed 27 people. No matter how I tried to resist the urge, it always overcame me. But I've gone almost five years without killing anyone. I still feel sad when I think of my victims, but I've forgiven myself. I realize I was suffering from a disease."

Laura L. says: "I had a particularly hard time, being one of the few women members. I slipped a few times and attacked two people, but I'm proud to say I haven't had an urge in over three years."

Members meet regularly to talk about their feelings, and support one another. But no everyone accepts the group. Law enforcement officials have criticized Dr Grumbler for keeping the names of his patients, but he remains resigned. "These people are now model citizens," he said. "I'm not going to betray their confidence."

HOW TO TELL YOUR FUTURE BY READING TEA LEAVES!

You can foretell your own future by reading tea leaves — thanks to some simple guidelines from an expert.

"The Chinese were reading tea leaves thousands of years ago and they developed it into a mystical science," renowned psychic Leah Lasher told the Weekly World News.

"It's based on a few simple rules. The idea is to interpret correctly what the various patterns and forms of the tea leaves mean for the future."

Miss Lasher has appeared on talk shows, teaches psychic awareness classes and has read tea leaves for clients for 20 years. To begin, the cup you must first put a teaspoon of loose tea in a teapot for three cups, plus one extra. Add boiling water, and let it steep for three minutes before filling your cup.

"Drink your tea until there's barely enough left in the cup to cover the leaves," said Miss Lasher. "Then pick up the cup by the handle with your weaker hand. Left hand for righties and right hand for lefties. Which hand grips the cup is important. For the right-handed person, the left side is the mental side and vice versa.

"As you hold the cup, swirl it three revolutions, down in a mystic number, a bringer of good luck. Put the cup back on its saucer and look into the bottom. Relax and concentrate on the patterns formed there by the tea leaves. Let fantasy take over. It should be like looking up at clouds and seeing shapes."

Determine what shape the leaves formed. Here's what the patterns mean, according to Miss Lasher.

Anchor: A successful journey or project lies ahead.

Banana: You're in for some good luck.

Circle: It always foretells success, whether in love, work or health.

Crown: A friend will help you, especially at work.

Cross: A sacrifice may be necessary, but in the long run it will be beneficial.

Fish: It signifies good health and happiness.

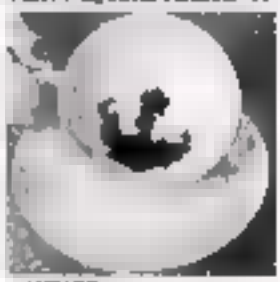
Flower: Your fondest wishes will be fulfilled.

Heart: Love or a friendship will be restored. Marriage or a romance will get strong.

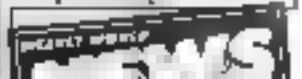
Key: A new [illegible] coming your way.

Octopus: It's a very clear warning of danger, so think twice about a new project.

Palm tree: Honor and praise are just ahead for you and your family.



ANCHOR pattern means a successful trip or project.



This sweet-looking 'Florence Nightingale' was an . . . ANGEL OF DEATH!

For years, nurse Jane Toppan was seen as an angel of mercy dedicated to caring for the sick. Then the awful truth came out — she was a sadistic, cold-blooded killer who made Jack the Ripper seem like an altar boy!

Though never given the recognition she deserved in her day, it was normal for sick people to die!, conservative estimates are that she sent 100 people to their graves with her own recipe of morphine and atropine.

But until her evil deeds came to light, she enjoyed a reputation among the doctors of Lowell, Mass., as one of the community's finest nurses.

She served as head nurse at Massachusetts General Hospital — until administrators discovered that her certificate was forged and she wasn't even a graduate nurse.

By KELLY TURNER
Weekly World News

Her deadly technique was diabolically simple. She would build up her patient's health to the point where the physician, encouraged over the improvement, would stop making regular visits.

Then she would sit at the patient's bedside and feed the poor soul a little of her brew, boosting the dosage each day.

Finally, the patient would go into violent convulsions, breathing would be labored and shallow, the pain would be agonizing.

And as death neared, Jane would become more and more excited.

Her patient's agony was her ecstasy.

It took 15 years, but finally her charade was exposed.

Forged prescriptions used to obtain the ingredients for her brew were traced to her.

She attempted suicide, but survived.

Then doctors told her she was going to die and, believing that, she made her chilling confession.

"... Yes, I killed them. I am going to die and I can't face my Maker with this on my conscience.

"I killed Mattie Then I killed Annie. I told her it was suicide. It was poison.

"I killed Mrs. Davis. And I killed Mrs. Mary Gibbs . . . Oh! I killed so many of them."

In all, she rattled off the names of 31 victims.

At her trial, her attorneys conceded to only 11 murders, but it had little effect on the outcome.

Her she told a horrified courtroom. "This is my ambition — to have killed more people more helpless people . . . than any man or woman has ever killed."

On June 23, 1901, Jane Toppan was committed to the State Hospital at Taunton, Mass., for life.

She died there in 1938 at the age of 81.

Her evil brew sent scores to their graves

Bankrupt Arab golf nut booted out of country club

. . . SO HE PLAYS IN THE DESERT!

Bankrupt Arab oilman Khaled Ben Abbes was booted out of the world's ritziest country club, but golf-crazy Khaled still gets in 36 holes a day — in the scorching Saudi Arabian desert!

By JOE BERGER

"They kicked me out of my club because I went broke and couldn't pay my dues, but there's just no way I'd ever give up golf. . . the never-say-die duffer told reporters in Tuvado.

"So I take my clubs every morning and walk out to the desert and play a couple of rounds in the rocks and sand, all by myself. It gets awful hot out there, maybe 130 degrees — and kind of lonely, too.

"But what the heck — it's better than no golf at all."

As recently as 1987, billionaire Khaled had a billion-dollar bank account, fooled around town in a flashy red Ferrari — and played golf at the swankiest country club in Tuvado.

But the arthead Arab frittered away his fortune in five short years — and moved from a 10-room mansion to a tent outside the city.

Now, he tells us, Khaled hauls his clubs into the blast furnace desert every morning at dawn and plays 36 holes in the world's ghastliest sand trap.

"The first thing every day, I have to walk around and dig myself some new holes because the sand almost always fills the old ones up during the night," the drought Arab said with a sigh.

"And it's a great way to stay in shape, as the rocks as I call especially around my make-believe desert because trying to put through a rock can really throw off your game.

"All in all, when the temperature's 130 going on 140 and you're lugging your own clubs, it's not as much fun as my old country-club days.

"But I'm improving my game all the time. Today I shot a crummy 96 — and that's not bad on a par-92 desert."

Botched hairdo drove wife off the deep end

She left a note for her hairdresser & vanished

BRISBANE, Aus[illegible] — Middle-aged mom Susan Ward has vanished from the face of the Earth — and cops think her disappearance may be connected to a botched haircut.

The woman left a note to her hairdresser in the car she abandoned indicating she was very upset that her haircut was too short. The woman's husband agrees the hairdo may have caused his mate to flip out.

"My wife was really upset about her hairdo and she did say she wanted to hibernate and not see anyone," Jack Ward told a local reporter. "But this is an awfully long time to hide. No one has seen her, no one has heard from her. I'm really worried, I don't know what to think."

Mrs Ward, 48, mysteriously disappeared on March 31, after telling her husband she was going to mail a letter. Police found her car abandoned on the banks of a river.

"After that her hair had to be just right — we've lost friends because at the last minute she didn't think her hair was okay and she would cancel appointments and social engagements."

Police are continuing their search for the missing woman.

"We've been married 18 years," her frantic husband said. "This thing is unbelievable. I can't understand it."

Police have requested that anyone with information about Mrs. Ward contact the Brisbane Police Department immediately.

Apr. 20 - May 20

At their best: Taurus men are devoted, trustworthy and loyal. They love regular meals, regular sex and a regular homelife.

At their worst: They're unrefined, even grims. They can place too much emphasis on material things and can be real slobs.

How to attract a Taurus: Cook for him. He'll be literally eating out of your hand.

Do: Behave conservatively and respectably.

Don't: Expect variety and adventure. Taurus men are steady and reliable but they can be dull!

Taurus kooks: Glen Campbell, Ronnie Travis, Jack Nicholson.

GEMINI

May 21 - June 20

At their best: They're constantly interesting, never dull. They'll keep you entertained.

At their worst: They don't know when to shut up and run be shameless gossips.

How to attract a Gemini: Forget about rules and trust your gut feelings. Instinct will tell you how to lure him. Be open to wild ideas.

Do: Organize sudden adventures to keep them interested.

CANCER

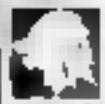
June 21 - July 22

At their best: They're affectionate, soft-hearted and nurturing. If you get the flu, Cancers come through with the chicken soup.

At their worst: They're clingers. If you want to keep your independence, steer clear of these "needy" men.

How to attract a Cancer: Be demonstrative with your affections. Hug him often.

Do: Reassure the Cancer male constantly.



LEO

July 23 - Aug. 22

At their best: Leos are the life of every party, big-hearted, high-spirited and extroverted.

At their worst: They pout and sulk when they don't get their way.

How to attract a Leo: Wear your most expensive clothes, perfume and jewelry. These guys are suckers for luxury.

Do: Lavish him with expensive gifts.

Don't: Criticize him, tease him too much

VIRGO

Aug. 23 - Sept. 22

At their best: They're as loyal and supportive as anyone you could hope to find.

At their worst: Virgo men can be prudish and repressed.

How to attract a Virgo: Never use crude language or tell a dirty joke. He wants to see you as virginal and chaste. Make him laugh with off-the-wall humor to loosen him up.

Do: Be neat and clean in your appearance.

Don't: Touch or pay him too much. Let

WEIRD WORLD NEWS SPECIAL EDITION!

PISCES
Feb. 19 - Mar. 20

At their best: Pisces men are caring, even pathetic and easygoing.

At their worst: They're weak and directionless. They can drain you with their dependence on you.

How to Attract a Pisces: Be assertive. Take the initiative and let him know you make your own decisions.

Do: Be kind, attentive and sensitive.

Don't: Interfere with his sleep.

Pisces Dunks: Bruce Willis, Prince Andrew, Michael Bolton.

AQUARIUS
Jan. 20 - Feb. 18

At their best: Aquarius men are never pretentious. They won't pressure you into getting married before you're ready. They're kind and rarely snobbish.

At their worst: They're aloof and uncommitted. They hate housework and can be real slobs.

How to Attract an Aquarius: Tell him you have another man who's romantically interested in you.

Do: Be self-sufficient and learn to cook. Aquarians hate spending time in the kitchen.

Don't: Make demands or pressure him about making a commitment.

Aquarius Dunks: Thad Newman, Tom Selleck, Alan Alda.

CAPRICORN
Dec. 22 - Jan. 19

At their best: Capricorns are industrious and hardworking. They're organized and goal oriented — never lazy.

At their worst: They're serious and morbid often obsessed with work.

How to attract a Capricorn: If possible meet him on the job. If not don't work with him at least steer the conversation along the lines of his career and let him talk. He'll love it.

Do: Convince him that he's appreciated.

Don't: Pressure him to take vacations or days off to relax at the park or the beach.

LIBRA
Sept. 23 - Oct. 22

At their best: They are a "class act" — sensitive, amiable and intelligent. They can charm the birds right out of the trees.

At their worst: Under that thin layer of charm, they can be shallow, lazy and self-indulgent.

How to attract a Libra: Give him the impression that dozens of guys are already after you. It doesn't hurt to make him think you're rich.

Do: Give tasteful gifts regularly.

Don't: Talk too loudly at social occasions.

Libra dunks: Michael Douglas, Jean-Claude Van Damme and Bruce Springsteen.

SCORPIO
Oct. 23 - Nov. 21

At their best: Scorpios are super-passionate, enthusiastic and intense — the sexiest sign in the Zodiac.

At their worst: They're manipulative and jealous. They can be vindictive and ruthless.

How to attract a Scorpio: Dress sexy! Be flirtatious. Don't be afraid to show your sensitive side.

Do: Stand up for your rights if he tries to dominate you.

Don't: Be boring.

Scorpio dunks: Kevin Kline and Ethan Hawke.

SAGITTARIUS
Nov. 22 - Dec. 21

At their best: They're outgoing and friendly. They're deep thinkers with strong ideas about life.

At their worst: They're restless and fickle. Even if they are faithful, they never stay home.

How to attract a Sagittarius: Keep a suitcase packed at all times and be ready to travel at a moment's notice. Be prepared for long-winded philosophical discussions.

Do: Develop an interest in sports.

Don't: Be critical or unenthusiastic. Sagittarians hate a stick-in-the-mud.

Sagittarius dunks: Ed Harris, Billy Idol, David Caruso.

BIZARRE ONE-IN-A-BILLION DISEASE

RAINDROPS WILL KILL THIS WOMAN!

ALVA Mellus protected her killer allergy on raindrops last year — and doesn't know the safety of her house on overcast days.

By TANYA BRODER

TOLEDO, Ohio — Ailing Alva McRae can't go outside when storm clouds gather — because a few drops of rain would kill her!

The 37-year-old woman is allergic to acids found in rainwater and doctors say the slightest contact with them could drop her in her tracks.

"They can't explain it but they tell me never to go out unless it's clearly going to stay dry," Alva says.

"I can't go anywhere where I'm likely to get caught in the weather.

"The last time I got wet, I nearly died. The doctors say they don't understand it, but they don't think I could survive another exposure. I won't even take a chance on using an umbrella or a raincoat, because just one drop could kill me."

Alva says she never had a problem with rainwater until last year when she traveled to Canada for a vacation. The weather there was rainy and foggy she said, and she was constantly outside.

Toward the end of her three-week stay she began experiencing skin problems. At first it was just itching and a mild rash.

But after a few days, her condition deteriorated drastically with swelling, bleeding and ugly, painful boils.

"By the time I got back from vacation I had a raging fever and I was so weak I could barely walk," Alva recalled. "My doctor put me in the hospital, but I continued to get worse. Eventually I got so sick they had to put me in an oxygen tent. They said I was suffering from a severe allergic reaction to something in the air, but they couldn't say what.

JUST in case, Alva wraps herself in plastic whenever she goes out — on sunny days!

"I was in the hospital for a month and if I hadn't gotten treatment when I did I would have died."

Experts later found that Alva reacts strongly to chemicals trapped by raindrops as they fall through polluted air to earth. Tests show she reacts so violently to them that she may well suffer cardiac arrest from the chemicals in just one raindrop. Only four other people in the world have this disorder, docs said.

"I hate having to restrict my activities, but I have no choice," says Alva, who now wraps herself in plastic every time she goes out — on sunny days!

Gal sues clothing manufacturer after her tight-fitting jeans split — exposing her bare butt!

GENOA, Italy — A 21-year-old student is suing an Italian jeans maker — because the tight-fitting pants split as she danced at a college party!

Magdalena Pena claims she suffered "extreme emotional pain, humiliation and suffering" when the back of her designer jeans opened up, revealing her bare backside, and blames the manufacturer for shoddy workmanship.

A spokesman for D'Angelo Jeans said in a statement that the company stands by its product and "cannot take responsibility for customers who insist on pushing the

...as she watches him perform on TV!

LONDON — A shocked granny got a mind-boggling demonstration of Uri Geller's powers when her dentures suddenly twisted like pretzels as she watched the psychic perform on TV!

"I've never been a believer in the supernatural before but I'm certainly convinced of Mr. Geller's psychic powers now," said Gertrude Marshall.

The 69 year-old widow said she was at home watching a rerun of a Geller performance on television when she suddenly felt her false teeth bending in her mouth.

"At first I was so astonished that I didn't realize what was happening," said Mrs. Marshall. "Then I popped out my uppers and sat there watching them twist in my hand."

Geller, a world-renowned psychic who uses his mind power to bend spoons and other metal objects, was demonstrating his abilities for viewers on a program broadcast April 30. A television station's switchboard was flooded with appointments for the television network's calls from viewers saying days and other aired by the time Geller went off the air, the household object were bent. Mrs. Marshall said she did not report her experience immediately because she was afraid no one would believe her.

"After I heard about other people having similar experiences I felt sure no one would laugh at me about my false teeth," Mrs. Marshall said.

NICE, France — The French are experimenting with a quirky new way to combat drunk-driving: "Designated horses" — animals specially trained to carry inebriated people home from bars!

In other countries, when people become too alcohol to drive, policemen will often take the tipsy but happy home themselves. The trouble with that is that police departments in Nice and other growing cities are shorthanded. They can't afford to be chauffeuring drunks.

WEEKLY WORLD NEWS SPECIAL EDITION!

HELP! MY FAT WIFE'S KILLING ME!

By MICHAEL ROY · Weekly World News

The 360-pound tub-of-lard breaks his bones every time she rolls over in bed!

TURIN, Italy — A pint-size hubby wants to divorce his 360-pound wife — because he claims his life is in danger every time she rolls over in bed.

And outraged mother-of-three Sophia Bianchi, 36, says she won't sleep apart from her husband in a separate bed. "That would be unthinkable and immoral," she declared.

Now a judge must [illegible] if 40-year-old Carlo Bianchi's broken arm, fractured ribs and damaged collarbone are sufficient grounds for divorce.

According to Mr Bianchi, the couple married after a long courtship in 1980 "and were eager to share the rest of their lives together."

But after the birth [illegible] couple's third child in 1986 Mrs Bianchi — described by her lawyer as a happy, jolly and devoted wife and mother — put on weight at what Mr Bianchi described as "at an alarming rate."

"She ate and ate after the birth of our youngest daughter," said Mr [illegible] "and very quickly reached her present weight of 360 pounds.

"It was then that all my troubles began."

Carlo Bianchi's attorney said that the husband is a small man, barely 5 feet 7 inches tall and barely 180 pounds after a heavy meal.

The attorney said Mrs Bianchi first rolled over on her husband a few days before Christmas 1987 and broke his arm just above the elbow.

"At that point my client pleaded with his wife to lose weight or move to separate sleeping quarters," the lawyer said.

"She refused both requests, causing quite a scene that required the attendance of the police."

According to Mr Bianchi several of his ribs were broken on the night of September 17, 1988 (this and other incidents were meticulously recorded in his diary) and his collarbone was damaged in late 1989 "during a night when Sophia was particularly restless."

Mr Bianchi's lawyer says that his client now feels his life is in danger.

"A 360-pound woman could crush the life out of a man as small as my client," he explained. "In all [illegible], I can't [illegible] by [illegible] that happen."

Mrs Bianchi, speaking to reporters at her home, claims that her weight has nothing to do with her hubby's desire for a divorce.

"He found another woman younger and slimmer than me, and that's why he wants to dump me," she added. "I may be fat, but I'm no fool."

Mr Bianchi says he has not met anyone else. "That's ridiculous," he said. "There's only one reason for this whole sorry affair. My wife eats too much pasta!"

Men stutter more than women because it's in their genes, experts say.

Other language handicaps such as autism and dyslexia are common in men but rare in women.

Scented business suits are flying off the racks in Korea!

SEOUL, Korea — Now you can not only look good, you can smell terrific too — just by buying the right suit!

The hottest thing to hit the Asian market in years is the "scented suit." The suits contain scented microcapsules in the fabric that are released and smoking cigars with the boys until all hours can simply rub themselves and the capsules explode, flooding the air with a sweet smell and covering up the rank odors of booze and tobacco.

CEMETE

By MICHAEL K. TODD, World News

[redacted] scientists are thronging to an eerie cemetery to study why corpses buried there do not decay — even after years in their dark and moldy crypts.

Bodies buried in the tiny graveyard of San Bernardo, Colombia, do not decompose, but instead turn into incredible "mummies" whose features and clothing are easily recognizable. Some have been lying in their graves for as long as 20 years.

And, after a series of university tests on skin, soil and food samples — scientists are still unable to pinpoint what causes the mummification.

"We can understand everyone's astonishment, we were perplexed too, and many of the townsfolk were alarmed when we discovered what was happening at the cemetery," says Father Rodriguez, priest to the 38,000 inhabitants of the primitive village.

"The custom here in Colombia is to exhume bodies from public crypts after five years or so, and for relatives to have the bones broken up and deposited in ossuaries — small vaults — in the church.

"But when we open the crypts at San Bernardo's cemetery the bodies have remained in good condition. We have had to reseal the crypts and wait for another 10 or even 15 years. And still the bodies are mummified.

"At first we thought it was due to the soil, but we ruled that out because the deceased are buried above ground in concrete crypts that are stacked, one on the other.

"Professors from the National University [redacted] bus loads of students and [redacted] atmosphere, the [redacted] . . . everything."

Eduardo Cifuentes, the 45-year-old San Bernardo Church cemetery keeper and parish assistant who is in charge of unsealing crypts and delivering the remains to relatives, says he has more than 25 mummified bodies "standing" in a communal vault under the church's chapel.

The mummies, he says, are [redacted] against a stone wall, their heads bowed as though they were ashamed to look at the lines of visitors who parade through the crypt.

"These are the bodies with no one to claim them," Eduardo explains. "Some were buried 20 years ago.

"Their [redacted] are tipped forward because a pillow was used to support them [redacted] original crypt.

"It's amazing how well they've kept. Some are babies only months old. There are five children altogether and most have perfect features. Many of the mummies are nicely clothed."

The town's Chief of Police, Jose Vicente Flores, a man who has lived in the area most of his life, said the cemetery had been switched from across town to its present location 20 years ago.

"This didn't happen in the old cemetery," Flores said.

National University of Colombia lecturer and Bogota surgeon, Dr. Miguel Antonio Alvarez, who last year completed a 18-month-long study of the San Bernardo region for the university, says he was astounded and amazed by what he saw in [redacted]

Health nut so scared of food additives . . . HE STARVES HIMSELF TO DEATH!

By MICHAEL SHERMAN · Weekly World News

LOUISVILLE, Ky. — Health freak Marc Kronz took government warnings about food additives seriously — so seriously that he eventually whittled his diet down to nothing and starved to death!

Authorities said the 29-year-old physical education instructor had been dead for about a week when his body was discovered in his apartment in a suburban duplex.

"I guess something like this was bound to happen," said a spokesman for the medical examiner's office. "The victim listened to scary stories about the causing cancer and that causing heart disease until he was too terrified to eat anything at all."

Friends of the dead man said Kronz became a vegetarian about 10 years ago while he was a college student.

"I spoke with friends of the deceased who said Kronz quit eating meat, not for any moral reason, but because he was concerned about his health and believed red meat was bad," the official said.

According to the medical examiner, Kronz continued to eat fish and poultry after giving up red meat, but stopped eating poultry when government studies revealed that chickens and turkeys were being pumped full of chemicals.

"Over the years Kronz gradually cut many other items out of his diet in order to protect his health," the spokesman said. "He quit eating canned goods because of the additives and preservatives.

"A 1990 report about the processing of dairy products concerned him so much that he stopped using them."

Kronz, who taught physical education and health at a local fitness club, existed on a diet of fruits, vegetables and fish until last year, according to the medical examiner's office.

"He was also concerned about water pollution and was reading conflicting reports on fish and shellfish," the spokesman said. "Of course, Kronz unbelievably eliminated them from his diet," the spokesman said.

"At about the same time, friends said he quit drinking tap water because it contains chemicals like ammonia and chlorine.

Kronz reportedly stopped eating fruits and vegetables because he heard they are sprayed with insecticide or may be contaminated with deadly bacteria, the medical examiner's office said.

He refused to get counseling to overcome his fear of food and said he'd never go to a hospital because they would make him eat things he didn't want," the spokesman said.

Friends and relatives tried to intervene, but he simply wouldn't listen to them.

"It's tragic, but in the last few months Kronz had turned into a walking skeleton.

"He finally died of starvation — apparently all because he was afraid his food would kill him."

A SPOKESMAN for the medical examiner's office said of Marc Kronz, above: "He listened to scary stories about the causing cancer and that causing heart disease until he was too terrified to eat anything at all."

MACHO MUSCLE MAN GROWS BOOBS!

WEEKLY WORLD NEWS SPECIAL EDITION!

STOCKHOLM, Sweden — Macho man Johan Andersson says he was turned [redacted] a limp-wristed sissy when his sneaky girlfriend started secretly feeding [redacted] hormones — and he didn't find out until he began [redacted] develop breasts!

The [redacted] professional bodybuilder responded by filing a whopping $1 million [redacted] against his former girlfriend, 24-ye[redacted]d Kristina Linnaeus.

"She's lucky I'm only suing her," the outraged muscle man told a local television station. "When I found out what she'd done to me, I felt like strangling her."

Andersson said he shared an apartment in Stockholm for about two years with his petite, blonde girlfriend before he noticed several bizarre changes in himself.

"Kristina and I had been together for a year when we had a big fight," the 6-foot-4 bodybuilder said.

"She said she was sick of me being so macho and was going to teach me some manners. I told her to shut up and get back in the kitchen.

"The next thing I knew, I had baby-soft skin and a bustline."

According to the lawsuit filed by Andersson, 30, his girlfriend, who manages a health food store, gave him a pill every morning that she said was a new super-vitamin.

Only later did he discover the capsules were packed with estrogen, the female hormone.

"At first I didn't feel any different, but after a couple of months my voice began to change," Andersson said.

"I didn't realize it until I answered the phone one night and this guy asked to speak to my husband."

Andersson said he then began noticing other changes.

Instead of shaving twice a day, he was shaving only once every week or so. He lost his strength and his sex drive and finally started developing female breasts.

"I pulled off my shirt one day at the gym and heard some fellows snickering," he said. "I thought, 'What the hell are they laughing at?' Then I looked at myself in the mirror and I couldn't believe it. I started to cry and ran out the door.

"I thought I was losing my mind."

After a visit to his doctor, Andersson learned that he was losing his manhood, not his mind.

"I saved one of my 'vitamins' and had the doctor check it out," he said. "When he told me I'd been taking female hormones for nearly a year, I was stunned."

Andersson said he immediately moved out on his girlfriend and is slowly returning to normal.

Kristina admits slipping estrogen to her macho man, but says she did it for his own good.

"I don't know why he's so upset," she said. "He was such a brute to live with until

Alien mummy found floating in space!

MOSCOW — A Russian space probe photographed the foil-clad body of a dead extraterrestrial as it passed within 75 feet of the object in deep space, a leading astro-physicist reports.

In a letter to the science journal Universe, Dr. Tomislav Zivkovic — a Polish scientist who collaborated with the Russians on the design of the probe — said the six very-foot object passed by the top secret craft last summer but was not positively identified until February.

"Photographs of the object are blurry and ill-defined, he said. But computer enhancement clearly shows the object to be helmeted, wrapped in foil and man-like in form.

"It even appears there are military insignias or decorations on the corpse's chest," said the expert.

"They are bluish black and look like starbursts. The corpse is also wearing a large head covering or helmet with tubes leading from front to back. The feeling is this was an alien starship officer who died and was buried with full honors in space.

"If this is so, the thing we will never know, of course, is where the alien came from and how long the body has been traveling through the void.

"Nothing deteriorates in the vacuum of space, so it could have been ejected the day before it was photographed — or 100,000 years ago, when cavemen were still walking the Earth."

Zivkovic said that he worked closely with Russian scientists "on a space-related project" last fall. According to Dr. Zivkovic, that project was the analysis of more than 75 photographs the Russian space probe took of the space-borne corpse before it drifted out of range and vanished into the emptiness of space.

"These photographs are a dramatic development in man's exploration of space," said the expert. "If nothing else, they are yet more solid proof that alien civilizations do exist."

Although the Russian officials have been mum about the photos to date, at least one observer believes they might make some of them public later this year. Edward Landesu, a leading Russian newspaper analyst, said a four-paragraph story that recently appeared in the newspaper Moscow Truth suggested that the Russians had indeed found something of staggering importance in space.

"The article was couched in typical Russian double-speak," said the Paris-based expert. "But it alluded to an extraterrestrial life-form and said more information was expected to be available by late May.

"Exactly what that means I don't know. But it's certainly possible that they intend to confirm and possibly elaborate on the Zivkovic report."

HELLBOUND: Johnny Corazzo loved Hell so much, he plans on living a sinful life so he can go back.

Man comes back from "HELL"

It's the playground of the NAUGHTY!

By LISA MERRITT Weekly World News

PITTSBURGH, Pa. — Photographer Johnny Corazzo died for seven minutes when his heart stopped during an operation, went to Hell — and says it was great, absolutely great!

The 31-year-old bachelor says Satan's kingdom was full of fast cars, free booze, babes in bikinis, slot machines, hookers, greasy fried food and other amenities. It was so terrific down there that he didn't want to return to normal life again.

"In Hell I saw my best friend from the old neighborhood and when he told me it wasn't my time yet I was really disappointed," recalled Corazzo.

"I woke up in intensive care and I actually cried, thinking of the exciting scene I had left behind.

"I want to be back there where things are hot. I want to be having fun with all those dudes down there. But I guess Satan has plans for me here on Earth."

Corazzo suffered serious internal injuries in an auto accident in March and was rushed to a hospital.

There doctors operated immediately hoping to repair a ruptured liver and badly damaged kidney.

While he was under the knife, Corazzo's heart suddenly stopped beating.

Desperate surgeons gave him heart massage and jolted him with electricity, but it took seven terrifying minutes to restart Corazzo's heart.

"I remember traveling through a tunnel toward a bright light," said Corazzo, who today is well again and back at work. "Suddenly I found myself in a huge space where I could see millions of people, many of whom I knew had died years ago. These people were moving [illegible] were having so much fun.

"There were beautiful babes all over the place, serving chicken nuggets, french fries and drinks. I had just grabbed a frosty bottle of beer when my old pal came up to me and told me I had to go back. I was so upset."

Corazzo says that since his glimpse of Hell, he's lost his fear of death.

He says he can't wait to die and go back to the great afterlife there. But meanwhile, he intends to lead a sinful life so he doesn't wind up in Heaven by mistake.

"I know where the fun is now," the photographer said. "No way do I want to spend eternity with a bunch of boring goody two-shoes in Paradise."

HOT TICKET!

Sultry brunette Dianna Walton is a real hot ticket! She regularly sets hearts afire when she shows up in movies and television series, and already has her own fan club. The black-haired beauty says acting is her first love, but she has room in her heart for Mr. Right, too — whenever he comes along.

We've got your number when it comes to love.

And you can find out more about your romantic side, too — by using numerology to reveal the truth about the inner you.

Gauging your capacity for kisses and cuddles is simple if you use the formula devised by Joan Simpson, author of the bestseller Joy Numbers (Crown Publishers, Inc., N.Y.).

Here's how it works:

Write down your complete name. Now, using the special chart given here, calculate your heart number.

Once you know your hot number for the heart, match it with the information below to find out about the real inner you.

How you can use numerology to unlock the secrets of your heart!

1 You're an independent type who likes to keep control over your relationships. You want people to love you for your mind rather than your looks, but you enjoy compliments just the same. You want no one to buy you or treat you like a possession.

2 You crave a special partner to satisfy your strong need to love and be loved. You hate to hurt feelings. At the same time you are very sensitive yourself and need someone who gives you tender loving care.

You love people who are cultured and beautiful.

3 You are a master flirt and an incurable romantic. You will make huge sacrifices for the people you love. You can be very charming — and you use charm to get your own way. You work hard to maintain your youthful good looks.

4 Logic rules you. And you like a routine, a set rhythm to your life with few surprises. Your relationship should be a comfortable one, and if you find it you will work hard to make it succeed.

5 You love excitement and change and have a healthy spirit of adventure.

But you need to keep your freedom because without it you feel suffocated. You know instinctively when to let go and move on.

6 You want harmony in your relationships. And you are not afraid to accept responsibility. You are so generous by nature that you are happiest when doing for others — especially the people you love. Watch out, though — you have a blind spot when it comes to seeing the faults of those you care for.

7 You need someone trustworthy to love because you hate more than anything to be conned. But you are very particular and slow to give up your privacy. You need love, but also time alone. You often feel that others misunderstand you.

8 You pride yourself on keeping your emotions under control. You are generous and extravagant and you love the praise and respect of others. You are known for your fairness and you are not afraid to accept challenges — even in love.

9 You're a real idealist when it comes to love and you fall hard when you fall for someone. Quick to forgive those who wrong you, you'll go far to forget your lover's mistakes. You are understanding and sympathetic and you like to be appreciated for these traits.

HERE'S HOW TO FIND YOUR HOT NUMBER:

First, vowels in your name are assigned these numerical values: A=1, E=5, I=9, O=6 and U=3.

List all of the vowels in your name along with their numbers. For example, if your name is John Doe:

J
O=6

O=6
E=5
17

Next, if the result is a two-digit number as above, add those digits (1 and 7) to get your hot number 8.

BRAVE MOM KILLS BERSERK SWAN AFTER IT ATTACKS HER LITTLE GIRL

By BEATRICE OEXTER
Weekly World News

MELBOURNE, Australia. — A picnic in the park turned into a bloody nightmare for two women and their children when they stopped to watch a beautiful swan — and the creature went berserk and attacked them!

'This crazy [redacted] pinned my little girl on the ground & started pecking at her head!'

Susan Foster and Barbara Schill had to beat the bird to death with a wooden shoe to stop the vicious assault. Later Mrs. Foster and her daughter Trina, 3, were treated in a hospital emergency room for minor injuries suffered during the swan's charge.

"I still shake when I think about it," said Barbara Schill, a 27-year-old housewife. "We were very scared. We didn't think we'd get away from it, it kept coming after us."

Mrs. Foster said that she and her three daughters had joined Mrs. Schill and her two children for a beautiful afternoon in the park.

The group followed a waterside trail to a small pond where they saw a gorgeous swan gliding peacefully over the water.

The women quieted their children so as not to frighten the swan and headed for a wooden bench beside the pond where they could sit and watch the bird.

"We saw the swan and we were tickled," Mrs. Foster recalled. "We went to sit down on the bench and its wings spread, squawking.

"As it came after us, we froze. Then when it kept coming, we told the kids they'd better run. My daughter Trina tripped and the bird started pecking at her.

"I put my wings around her [redacted] and its wings spread, squawking.

GOOD-HUMORED Lucille Michele

DETROIT, Mich. — Mother-of-two Lucille Michele got a look at her son's new haircut — and died laughing!

The 42-year-old woman's gullaws led to a severe asthma attack, which in turn triggered a fatal heart attack as a surgery chimed. The devoted was stone cold dead within four hours of her laughing fit.

"She was just so tickled with Buddy's new punk cut — she just thought it was hilarious," recalled the woman's 15-year-old daughter Pat.

"She was laughing and laughing and getting real red in the face.

Then all of a sudden she had trouble getting her breath. She was gasping and kind of choking.

"We took her to the doctor and he sent her right to the emergency room.

While we were there she had [illegible] attack [illegible]

died. It was just terrible."

Relatives say high school dropout Buddy feels responsible for his mother's death. The 16-year-old mechanic's helper says if he hadn't gotten his bizarre haircut Lucille would still be alive.

According to members of the family, Lucille was in excellent health before her death, except for occasional bouts with asthma.

She was looking well and she was happy with her life so we had no reason to suspect she was in danger," says Pat. "My mom was always so good-humored and she always had a ready laugh.

"But the day she died, she laughed herself sick. I mean, she took one look at Buddy and just freaked out.

Lucille had heard from her pet's apartment roommates that he'd gone overboard on a new punk hairstyle and she said she was dying to get a look at it. Buddy came over to his mother's home to show her the haircut after she asked to see it.

When Buddy walked into the living room of his mom's apartment on November 13, Lucille took one look and started to chuckle, her belly first. Then she began to roar with laughter.

"She was slapping her thigh and having a great big laugh when all of a sudden she started wheezing and coughing," Pat says. "From then on her health just went downhill and she fell to pieces. It seems like one minute she was laughing and the next minute she was dead.

"Our only consolation is that she died happy."

Weekly World News

Weather Affects Your Health

● The ideal temperature for a person's well-being is between 70 and 75 degrees.

● Wet, stormy weather will cause your surgical scars to itch.

● The most commonly complained of ailment in bad weather is fatigue, followed by depression, arthritis, sinus pressure, insomnia and headaches.

● A drop in barometric pressure can cause your legs to swell by as much as an inch due to shifts in body fluids.

● I.Q. scores may rise by 10 percent just before a storm.

● People feel restless when the barometer drops.

● You can eat 3,000 calories a day in winter and not gain weight because you burn off the extra calories trying to keep warm without an outside source of heat.

● The best first aid treatment for frostbite is a blanket wrap and a warm drink. The worst treatments include hot water bottles, heat lamps and ice cubes.

● There are twice as many fatal heart attacks in winter as in summer.

Weather Affects Your Mood

● Aggressive behavior increases as the temperature rises. Rain increases depression.

● Almost everyone, 99 percent of those surveyed, reported feeling happier on sunny days, which may account for the fact that aggressive acts say they get larger tips when the weather is sunny.

● Men are more easily motivated to perform physical tasks on warm days.

● The most common bad weather mood is fatigue. Depression, insomnia and headaches are next.

● Your mood today is often a response to yesterday's weather.

Dealing With the Weather

● The best thing to drink during hot weather is plain water. The worst thing to drink is liquor.

● Wear a hat in cold weather. A full 50 percent of the body's heat loss is through the head. Hands and feet are the second and third escape routes for body heat.

● Feeling blue? Blame it on the air conditioner. It removes negative ions — the ones that make you feel good — from the atmosphere.

● Mittens will keep your hands warmer than gloves.

CHILD LABOR HORROR!

CHIETI, Italy — The human race has a shameful history, dating back at least 1,900 years, of forcing children to work long, back-breaking hours, new evidence reveals.

Researchers say the bones of 5- and 6-year-old children found in the ruins of Pompeii contain horrible lesions that appear to be "work-related."

The lesions indicate that the youngsters were forced to do near-impossible feats of manual labor for up to 20 hours a day — every day.

7-YEAR-OLD Maung Htin has healed everyone who sought his help.

By MICHAEL R. TODD / Weekly World News

PUNAKHA, Bhutan — A mysterious child healer miraculously cures disease by absorbing ailments directly from his patients into his own body — and then returning to normal in a matter of minutes.

Witnesses say little Maung Htin, from this isolated Asian country near Nepal, can heal any type of illness or physical deformity and has even cured psychiatric conditions with his amazing powers.

"The child is only 7 years old, but he has extraordinary abilities," wrote Dr. Khin Lwin, a psychologist who reported on the little boy's work for the journal Phenomena.

"He places his hands on his patient, closes his eyes and mutters a prayer.

"Within moments the patient begins to look better. As he improves, however, the boy begins to weaken. Soon little Maung is obviously suffering from what it was that afflicted his patient before.

"I have seen his hands thicken and blacken as he treated a poor leper. Last year while healing a paralyzed woman, he lost all feeling and movement in his body.

"But invariably, he gets well again.

"After some minutes, he gives a shudder and returns to perfect health.

"It is clearly real, not a pretense."

According to an article by Dr. Lwin in the Asian government science journal, Maung lives in a rural village near Punakha.

Although his home is far from major roads, word of his healing has spread to nearby cities.

Hundreds of ill and needy people travel to his small, simple home and they are sent away cured.

The child is believed to be endowed by Buddha with power to banish disease, and priests and mystics have taken up residence near his home, Dr. Lwin said.

"The boy's family has known for some time of his special gift, but they hid him for fear he would be taken away by authorities," Dr. Lwin said.

"They told me Maung's great-grandfather also had healing abilities, but not to this extent."

Lwin worries that the family's fears for their son may be justified in that since word of his incredible power has spread, Buddhist authorities have moved to gain control over the boy's future.

"They are talking of sending him into isolation at a Tibetan monastery so that he can study for a religious life," he said.

"But it is possible that he will lose his healing powers if this happens.

"The boy gains tremendous strength and power from his family and may be too upset to carry on with his work if the monks have their way.

"And what good can he do hidden away in a monastery studying? His powers are a gift from Heaven.

"He should be allowed to bring his healing skill to the people who need it."

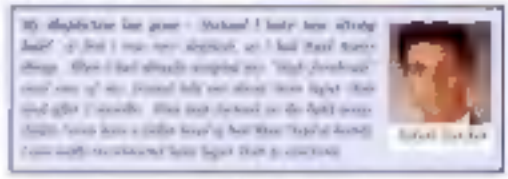
"Beautiful, full and healthy hair will crown your personality too. So don't use just any old products. My secret tip for you: shampoo, lotion and tonic by Swiss Super Hair"

Like the roots of a plant, hair is a "living thing" which relies on the best "ground quality". If the scalp is stressed (by washing too often or using unsuitable shampoo) or unduly stressed, nutrition of the hair root can become disrupted. The result: the hair is weakened, dies and falls out! This is where the natural plant extracts of SWISS SUPER HAIR can help to restore the biological "normal" condition of the scalp so that as few hairs as possible are lost.

Problem found – Problem banished.

One of the most important discoveries was the so-called "Hair Life-Cycle". On a normal scalp about 85% of the hairs are in the growth phase (ANAGEN), about 14% in the resting phase (TELOGEN) and about 1% in the intermediate phase (KATAGEN). This hair life cycle decides the length of the growth phase. If the cycle is disrupted, premature hair loss occurs. To prevent this from happening, SWISS SUPER HAIR will provide the scalp with a fortifying complex of agents made from fresh plant extracts. This complex stimulates the ANAGEN phase in a natural way and thus ensures continuing, healthy hair growth.

SWISS SUPER HAIR is the solution for many scalp and hair problems! Do you suffer from lice, tics, fleas and lifeless hair or from hair loss? Then your hair needs special caring substances to work on your hair roots and rebuild your hair. Special shampoos, tonics and lotions stimulate and reactivate the hair roots and revive the stressed, damaged hair with active agents. Many plant substances are present to strengthen and nourish the hair successfully.



Effective plant extracts give your hair elasticity and volume!

The shampoo with the valuable natural power of ground plant extracts. Extracts of hops, malt, nettle, chamomile, sarsaparilla, arnica, birch and cystoseira give the roots of your hair natural energy and your hair elasticity and volume. Brittle hair is strengthened and supplied with important nutrients. The hair roots are reactivated. Newly growing hair especially is visibly stronger and feels fuller. This product is an all-in-one shampoo and conditioner.

Stops hair loss caused by hormones in a completely natural way!

Hair loss can now be stopped – completely without any chemicals! Hair loss, thinning, fine hair make individuals aware of themselves and diminish their sense of self-esteem. MEDISAN has developed an effective product to combat such problems – SWISS SUPER HAIR Tonic. Enriched with herb extracts, it can reactivate and strengthen apparently dead hair roots with new plant hair roots. The supply of blood to the epidermis is increased, the hair roots are strengthened – and the lifeless, thin hair regains strength and fullness again.

SWISS SUPER HAIR Tonic

Works real miracles – the regenerating hair treatment!

This lotion sounds the treatment off in an ideal way. A few drops should be applied twice a week to the wet scalp and massaged in (important: do not rinse the hair afterwards). The plant substances contained in the lotion nourish, activate and regenerate the scalp. The result: hair growth is stimulated, fine hair is fortified and brittle hair is strengthened. SWISS SUPER HAIR Lotion gives your hair natural shine, volume and fullness. Thanks to the powers of nature, your dream of full, thick and fast growing hair will come true!
